James Jackson of Haines City, Fla., says there are four rides for children, four for adults and two extras.

J. Edgar Hoover Found Dead Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover, embodiment of the FBI and focus of law enforcement achievement and controversy for nearly half a century, is dead.

The 77-year-old director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation died of natural causes in his home Monday night, the Justice Department announced.

President Nixon, upon hearing of Hoover's death, called him a "truly remarkable man who served the country for 48 years under eight presidents with unparalleled devotion to duty and dedication." Nixon spoke emotionally of his "profound sense of personal loss."

Hoover was a virtual legend in the United States, an "untouchable" who died in office despite efforts by critics in recent years to have him retired.

He had shaped the FBI into a massive, powerful federal agency during his career.

Across Pennsylvania Avenue from the office where Hoover worked, a massive powerful federal building to house the FBI is under construction.

Even before Hoover's death, there had been continuing speculation about whether the new building would be named for him or perhaps might even house his final resting place.

Speculation on a successor to Hoover also began long before his death as political pressure to retire Hoover alternately waxed and waned.

It had seemed almost certain he would retire or be retired if the Democrats beat President Nixon in the November election. Nixon now will be able to pick a successor. Washington, D.C. police chief Jerry Wilson, a recent Nixon law enforcement favorite, had been prominently mentioned as a possible successor before Hoover's death.

Hoover's No. 2 man in the bureau was Clyde A. Tolson, the associate director. The two were long-time colleagues who spent much time together. Tolson, 71, has been in ill health.

Accolades for Hoover flowed almost immediately from Capitol Hill and other locations of government.

Arkansan Dies In Collision

PORTAGEVILLE — One died and nine were injured at 12:40 a.m. today in a two-car collision four miles south of Portageville on Interstate 55.

Dead is Maudy Mae Rogers, 47, of Leachville, Ark. She is the 46th traffic fatality this year in Southeast Missouri, compared to 52 at this time last year. She was a passenger in a car driven by Mildred Tessley, 28, of Senath, who was critically injured. Also injured in the Tessley car were Bennett Murphy, 23, of Keiser, Ark., with minor injuries, and Panell Curtis, 48, of Keiser, serious injuries.

Six in the second car, all from Detroit, received only minor injuries. They were Issac Brunson, 58, the driver; his wife, Gladys 54; Mary Orr, 34; Earl Junior Orr, 2; Yolanda Martin, 2, Dorothy Martin, 30. The injured were taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti.

According to the highway patrol, the Tessely auto pulled from the shoulder of the road on the highway and into the path of the Brunson car.

Tax Unchanged
Budget Approved

The city council last night approved an $826,775 budget for the new fiscal year.

The budget will be financed through a tax assessment of $1.74 per $100 assessed evaluation which has remained unchanged for the fifth year in a row.

This year's budget is about $227,000 less than last year's total of $1,053,720. The lower budget is a result of less federal funds. Last year's budget included funds for the new administrative building and activity center.

The largest single amount of funds spent in the budget will fall in the public safety area. Forty-four per cent of the budget, or $364,935, will go to police, fire, civil defense, regulatory inspection, and animal protection.

The next largest section is for streets and sanitation. Twenty two per cent, or $181,600 of the budget will go to engineering, streets, and garbage disposal.

Both the general government fund and the recreation fund will receive 9.6 per cen of the budget. The library and parks will receive $79,500, while $79,235 will be spent for government operations.

The contingency fund is $35,000. This year's budget doesn't provide much leeway for financial mistakes.

A total of 43.8 per cent of the budget, or $360,840, will go for salaries and wages. No other expenditure comes close to matching this figure.

According to the anaylsis of property valuations submitted with the budget, the total value of the Scott County section of Sikeston has risen from $12 million in 1963-64, to an estimated $18,670,000 in the 1973 fiscal year.

At the same time, the value of the New Madrid County part of town has risen from $383,585 to $1,975,000.

The budget shows a general rise in the cost and services provided by the city. The taxation rate has remained stable for a long period and has decreased from $2 in 1960.

The taxation rate of $1.74 is the lowest since the 1964-65 fiscal year, when the tax was $1.55.

While no new taxes were discussed, Ernest Harper, representing retail businessmen in town, spoke out against a proposed cigarette and liquor tax. He said it was a nuisance tax which would end up costing firms business.

A group of blacks came before the council last night seeking help in a search for jobs. One member of the group, the concerned Citizens of Sikeston, said, some of the men are veterans who fought for their country in Vietnam, and then returned home to make a living, but could find no jobs available.

They said they weren't seeking jobs with the city because it already employes about 25 per cent non-whites. The city is 17 per cent non-white.

They said they wanted the council's help in opening up job opportunities in businesses.

The council decided to hold an informal meeting later this week with the group to discuss what can be done.

John Scott, a member of the Sikeston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People told the council residents of Sunset Addition are concerned about the high crime rate there. He said there was a great amount of fear in the community because of the hammer beating of Mrs. Beulah Wyse. Mrs. Wyse has returned home from a hospital but police are still unable to question her and may not be able to if her condition does not improve.

The council approved the proposed Cole Subdivision and the re-subdivision of the west half of block two of the Clayton Heights Addition.

The board approved the rezoning of two lots owned

Johnny Gene Rodgers, charged with burglary and larceny was granted probation without supervision after he received concurrent sentences of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. He pleaded guilty to charge of breaking into Randolph's Dollar Store in Gideon March 18 and stealing merchandise valued at $25.

Howard Young was fined $25 and costs on charge of exhibiting at .38 caliber pistol Feb. 26 in the presence of Marilyn McClanahan of Kewanee.

Griffith, representatives of local 27, against Carl Shaw and Cecil Dewies, representative of local 562.

Diehlstadt Mayor Quits, Cites Discord

DIEHLSTADT — Paul Norman, who has served a 25- year tenure as mayor, resigned Monday night at a meeting of the town board.

Norman, a building contractor, said he resigned because of disagreement with three members of the board.

"The new board, which includes Lawrence Burton, L. C. Allen and James Howard, has seemed to oppose everything other members of the board have tried to do," Norman said. "They (the new board) think we have too many stop signs already and don't want any more erected, and they don't believe in law and order.

"They are not in favor of appointing a city attorney, and without such an attorney, we cannot enforce city ordinances and laws as they stand."

Norman was elected in April of 1971 to a two- year term.

He said he would not under any circumstances accept the position again even if re- elected by the townspeople.

"I've served in the position long enough," he said. "There's no point in trying to better the community with such opposition as those members of the board. When the vote remains three to two on everything there's little you can do."

The fifth member of the board, Grover Morrow, resigned from his post as chief of police April 18. L. C. Allen, 78, also a board members was elected to the position by a majority vote of three to two. Allen, Howard and Burton made up the majority.

Jaycees Will Buy Glass Crusher

The glass reclaimation project will soon have a glass crusher to make storing and shipping of reclaimed glass easier.

The project, sponsored by the Jaycees, is an attempt to collect glass that would normally end up littering roadsides or creating problems for garbage disposal.

The Jaycees are considering buying a crusher in Memphis, according to Bill Burch, who is helping to find the crusher.

Burch said the crusher, which will cost around $400, fits on top of a 50-gallon drum and is driven by a five horsepower motor. It grinds glass into powder.

The crusher will be stored at the Sheltered Workshop. Proceeds from the sale of the glass will go to the workshop for continuation of the program.

Once the glass is crushed and packaged it will be shipped to the Owens-Illinois Glass manufacturing plant in Alton, Ill., for recycling.

Other items to be pruchased with the glass crusher include safety glasses and gloves for those who handle the machine.

Once crushed, the glass will be shipped to Alton.

Two Charged In Escape

A Sikeston woman and a juvenile, accused of helping a man escape from police Sunday afternoon, face charges of interfering with a police officer, charges which on conviction could get each of them up to five years in prison.

Police charge the pair helped Willie "We We" Harris, accused of felonious assault in the April 15 beating of Charles Earl Lee of Benton, escape from two policemen.

Lee was attacked at the Community Club on Felker St.. His wounds were severe enough that he was taken to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

Charged are Mrs. Ida Mae Howard, 226 Dixie, and Harris's younger brother who was released on parole last week.

Police gave this account:

Officer Odis Applewhite and Auxiliary Officer Tom Bean went to the Howard home. They were let in by Mrs. Howard. They then told Harris, who was sitting in the living room, that he was under arrest.

Harris broke and ran for the back door. He was caught there by the officers. At that point Harris's brother ordered the police to release him and put his hand in his pocket, as though he had a gun. Bean let go of Harris, drew his gun, and covered the brother.

Applewhite then began dragging Harris to the door. Harris began screaming for help, saying the police didn't have a warrant. At that point, Mrs. Howard began pushing Applewhite, and caused him to release Harris. Harris ran out the door and escaped.

Harris's brother was taken into custody and was in city jail today. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John Wilson issued a warrant for Mrs. Howard's arrest yesterday.

Harris is still at large.

We hear frequent reference to "modern advertising" when problems of trade are discussed.

Yet, advertising is anything but modern. Advertising is as old as commerce – as old as civilization. Best of the recovered records of the ancient Phoenicians, the first great merchants of the world, are advertisements.

In ancient Roman cities, the central bulletin board, the newspaper of two thousand years ago, was used largely for advertising. The advertisements posted on Roman bulletin boards did not differ greatly from those which appear in newspapers of today.

The colonial newspaper in American came into existence primarily to provide information on goods available from newly arrived ships. The new goods provided by the industrial revolution were sold by an increase in advertising -- advertising which financed the beginning of a free and independent press in the United States.

By 1865 slogans connected with "modern" advertising were common. Some of these were: "Advertising is a blister that draws trade." Or, "Ceasing to advertise in dull times is like tearing out a dam because the water is low." Or, according to Horace Greely, to do without advertising was "to close one's eyes to the light and insist upon living in perpetual darkness."

Thus, the major change in advertising over the centuries has been in quantity; a great deal more is needed today because of the increased variety in goods and services, and because of the rapid change in the consumer situation in every community.

Columnist Paul Scott reports a Commerce Department official has admitted the sale of American equipment for a Russian truck factory will "increase Russia's military potential." He says Rauer Meyer made the admission in a letter to Anthony Sutton, research fellow at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace. There are "other" considerations, Meyer said, such as "the fact such equipment is essentially available abroad." Columnist Scott says American reconnaissance photos show that trucks destroyed in Laos by U. S. bombers are the same as those built in Russia in the truck plant constructed for the Russians by the Ford Motor Company in the 1930s. The Commerce Department, by the way, is refusing to reveal the name of the American firms that are selling the American equipment for the new truck factory on the Kama river. A group of U. S. Representatives headed by John Schmitz of California has declared war on the secrecy surrounding the equipment licensees and will try to make the administration reveal if it plans to offer the Russians credit.

A well known nutritionist recently told a Heart Association gathering that Americans are now a nation of junk eaters because of the frantic rat-race for the dollar in this country.

Children too often eat at ball parks from vending machines, at the movies, at school or at snack stands, eating foods which were once looked upon as after-dinner treats. This diet doesn't give them the nutrition needed to build strong and healthy bodies.

Adults, including mothers who have left home seeking the dollar and who thus aren't preparing hot meals for the children, race through a hamburger or sandwich in a frenzied day of tension and push. Many gulp sandwiches and dulling drinks with them, conducting business at mealtime.

All this is bad for nutrition, nerves and long life which some Americans will learn too late.

REAL PULL POWER

Don Robinson, one of the regular contributors to the American Press magazine, came up with some interesting facts on a survey that was taken about 25 years ago. Even though rather musty, the facts are extremely interesting.

The defunct American Press Assoc. employed a top rated research organization to make one study of readership of a small town weekly newspaper. The formula for the research was based on a Continuing Study of Metropolitan dailies which was attracting a lot of attention at this time.

A comparison of the results of the one study of a weekly with the results of the studies of dailies was amazing--for it showed that advertising in a small weekly received about seven times the readership of the average advertisements in a big daily.

Mr. Robinson went on to point out: "if that one study, which made a slight ripple in advertising circles and then sank into musty files, had been followed by other studies and led to a major research project on behalf of other weeklies, it is quite possible that the smaller newspapers might today be in the forefront of media used by National advertisers."

The APA was unable to get the backing for continuing research and nobody has done much about it since.

Mr. Robinson concluded that Warren Grieb, who heads the New Newspaper advertising Bureau, Inc., may lift the small town newspapers out of last place in the advertising league and make them a major contender for national advertising.

BLOODBATH IN VIETNAM

Our government's Vietnam policy of late has seemed to be governed by political expediency rather than by strategic and moral considerations. Strategically, our withdrawal from Southeast Asia would signal a major communist victory. But we must also never forget our moral responsibility to help protect the South Vietnamese from the massacre which would inevitably follow a communist takeover.

A little noticed report prepared by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee contains this startling statement: "A Communist victory in Vietnam almost certainly would be followed by massive bloodletting, probably involving several million victims." The lengthy report contains expert opinions supported by documents and the facts of history. It concludes that at least 100,000 and more likely one million or more persons would be killed by the communists should they achieve victory. Some communist defectors have estimated the death toll at three million.

One important chapter of the document explores what happened in North Vietnam after the communists took power there. A Rand Corporation consultant made a special study of the reports of the International Control Commission, concluding that from 50,000 to 100,000 North Vietnamese were massacred. The Communist Central Committee in 1955 had set a minimum number of five persons per village to be killed. Many more persons would have been killed had they not been able to escape to South Vietnamese.

The massacres in Hue when the Vietcong had control there foreshadow what would happen throughout the country. Our government has earned a reputation for giving high regard to moral considerations. If we abandon the people of South Vietnam to massacre, we will have lost all claim to this reputation. HLH.

CHICAGO (AP) - Another polltaker rang the doorbell again last weekend.

Some people are on the lists for pornographic mail or invitations to all-expense-paid trips to Mexico to look at parking lots. I get all the polltakers.

"Hi, are you watching television?"

"Yeah."

"Who are you watching?"

"Kareem Abdul Jabbar."

"What primaries is he entered in?"

"He's not in a primary. He plays professional basketball for the Milwaukee Bucks."

"I see. Well, I'm conducting a private poll on the presidential candidates and the primaries."

"But the Illinois primary was over a month ago."

"Yes, I know. But our client is very interested in learning who you would have voted for if you hadn't voted for the man you did vote for."

"Why?"

"Well, sir, you see since there are so many clients, excuse me, so many candidates, and so many primaries, it's very likely that some candidates will drop out of the race and that would strengthen our client's position, especially if he could secretly reveal the results of a private poll showing that he would have won various primaries that he lost.

"Oh."

"So, would you mind telling me who you would have voted for if you didn't vote for the man you voted for."

"Don't you want to know who I voted for?"

"It's immaterial. It only matters who your second choice would be. Sometimes it's better to lose in New England, the South, the Midwest and the Far West as long as you can say you were the next choice. That shows broad appeal."

"What's the difference why you lost so long as you lost?"

"I think it's like sports. It's nice for managers and coaches to say they lost because of the layoff or because of the tight schedule, you know."

"Yeah, but the fans don't believe that."

"What do they believe?"

"They believe if you lost it's because you weren't good enough."

"I'm sorry, sir. My client could never accept that as a poll result. Thanks anyway. See you after the California primary."

"You'll still be taking primary polls after the last primary?"

"Oh, sure. At least several candidates already have asked for samplings showing that most people don't believe in primary results anyway."

Hal Boyle is ill.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A prominent ad agency broke off its campaign to help Senator Jim Eastland's rival in Mississippi's Democratic primary after the agency was promised it might get a cut of President Nixon's lucrative campaign advertising.

Eastland, of course, is the Senate Judiciary chairman who bailed out Richard Kleindienst, the President's choice for attorney general, during the ITT hearings. Before the first witness was heard, Eastland declared his faith in Kleindienst and, thereafter, steered him helpfully through the stormy hearings.

Eastland was also the lone Democrat who voted with the Republicans, in the end, to shut off the hearings to avoid any more embarrassing testimony.

Yet, despite the appearance of a blatant political deal, the parties to it insist it can all be explained away as fast as you can say ITT'

Here are the facts:

Taylor Webb, a moderate Leland, Miss., lawyer, decided early this year to run against the owlish Eastland, whose power in the Senate is based on 30 years seniority.

Webb resisted pressure to keep out of the race and announced his candidacy. He then sought an advertising agency to handle his campaign, but four in a row turned him down.

He was compelled, finally, to go out of the state for help, and he signed up the respected Houston firm of Culberson, Heller and Norton.

"Before I signed with these people, I asked if they knew what they were getting into," Webb told my associate Les Whitten. "Bob Heller and Jim Culberson both said they did.

Webb advanced the agency $7,500. The Houston firm cashed the check and started producing TV spots. On April 15, they were still working loyally for Webb against Eastland when peppery Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., one of their key clients, flew into Houston.

It's an open secret in Washington that Tower is an errand boy for the White House. He notified the Houston ad agency that if they wanted to stay in his good graces, they would have to drop Webb.

Earlier, Tower had promised the agency to seek the Texas contract for President Nixon's campaign with its million in billings. This, too, was in the balance.

As one of the partners, Ed Norton, explained to us: "Tower told us months earlier he would try to get us the presidential business. We felt that before during and after (the meeting with Tower), he intended to help us."

Tower told us that he had reaffirmed his commitment to the young agency at the meeting. "I said I would try to get some of the Nixon business for them but I'd have done that for them anyway," he advised us.

Within 24 hours of Tower's warning to the agency, another partner, Bob Heller, was on the phone with an outraged Taylor Webb. Recalls Webb: "Heller told me he was going to withdraw from my campaign against Senator Eastland." Heller denied to us that he had mentioned Eastland's name.

What makes this all the more curious is that Tower is a Republican and Eastland a Democrat. Normally, Republicans don't help Democrats to win re-election to the Senate.

The ad agency put out the story that they had dropped the Webb account solely because they were too busy with the Tower campaign. But the agency knew how busy they would be before they signed on with Webb.

We have now discovered that agency partner Norton, after begging off Webb's campgain allegedly because of too much work, flew secretely to Washington on April 27 to seek Nixon's political advertising. In short, Norton went to Washington to see that Nixon's advertising team delivered on Tower's promise.

Norton talked to the "November Group," as the Nixon advertising team is called. He spoke to the group's executive vice President, Phil Joanou, who works under the direction of former Attorney General John Mitchell.

Joanou promised to consider the Houston agency when it comes time to dish out the advertising accounts.

Footnote: Joanou, Norton, Heller, Tower and Eastland all insist they were not party to any deal. Norton specifically denied persistent reports that Fred LaRue, a former White House aide and now special assistant to Mitchell, had joined Tower in putting heat on the Houston agency to drop the Webb account. LaRue, an old friend of Eastland, couldn't be reached. Tower, in a chat with us from Texas, stoutly denied that the White House had asked him to act in Eastland 's behalf. Tower said that when Webb threatened to sue the ad agency, he told them to go along and take Webb's account. Eastland, himself, cautious as an old bear, commented: "Hell, I don't know a thing about it. If John Tower was doing something for me, I think he would have talked to me about it."

JIMMY'S PREDICTIONS

Jimmy the Greek, the famous Las Vegas oddsmaker who prepares his political odds for us, rates Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern even in the critical Democratic primary in Ohio today (Tuesday).

With George Wallace out of the race, the Greek believes Henry Jackson will pick up many Wallace voters and, therefore, will roll up a respectable total. But the chances are 50-to-1 against Jackson's winning, Jimmy believes. Ed Muskie's prospects, since he has withdrawn from the race, are also 50-to-1.

In the last primary Jimmy predicted for us, he called the results in Florida right on the nose.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Ted Kennedy's Letter: McGovern's Needling Meany May Cost Senator Heavy Labor Support Even If Nominated.

WASHINGTON — There comes to hand a note just sent me by Ted Kennedy which proves that a political pragmatist is born not made. And this missive arrives at the same moment George Meany has gotten off one of those "Rum, Romanism an; Rebellion" statements which proves that being a Ph. D. even in labor history does not a politician make.

Sen. McGovern, feeling his primary oats has, it seems to me, just told off the powerful, now completly politcally mobilized labor movement (at least the AFL-CIO's Committee on Policital Education (COPE). The professorial South Dakotan, feeling confident of rolling into the Democratic convention with over 1,000 delegates, may well have thrown away the only viable machinery in the Democrats' infrastructure. Without labor's machinery first and money second, no Democratic nominee can win in November, I do believe.

McGovern has just said he cannot compromise with the 20-year position of AFL-CIO President George Meany and most of the labor movement on the war and foreign policy. And the euphoris self-assured Senator wants Meany to admit his "mistake." Obviously the smoke billowing out of labor's national headquarters' eighth floor is too sulphuric to come from Meany's famed cigars.

At which point in what seems to be the unmaking of a Presidential candidate (or even nominee), there should be entered the note from Ted Kennedy who wrote me, in part:

"...Although, as I have said, I will not be part of the ticket in 1972, I can assure you that I will be part of the team in order to see victory for the Democrats in 1972.

"I consider the trade union movement an indispensable unit of that team and we are doing our best at this time through our schedule to warm up for the main event in November...."

The Massachusetts Senator has hit the trail literally and figuratively -- banquet after banquet, union convention after convention. He has written a piece on the massive use of scientific engineers on the problems of the big cities for the AFL-CIO's Scientific and Professional unit's journal. He has just spoken for the Steelworkers, just been virtually nominated by the Auto Workers, is heading for Jack Potofsky's men's clothing workers and Paul Jennings' International Union of Electrical Workers conventions. All right through to the end of June.

He has not tackled McGovern. But not out of any passionate political devotion. He just has not wanted to do to the South Dakotan what "Bobby" did to Gene McCarthy -- no bloodletting, no outburst of bitterness wanted, no cutting up the team.

He wants that team united and in season -end form next fall and he knows the power is inside labor.

And labor may be the power inside the convention. Up in Meany's "801" headquarters the reckoning is there will be at least 500 union officials as convention delegates -- if Hubert Humphrey wins the pruning primaries. Especially in California where the union confederation, led by one of Meany's intimates, former Ambassador John Henning, is high geared for action.

If McGovern wins the primaries, there will be but 150 union delegates. Not much. The attitude now is, well then let him have it. There's the morning after.

And that morning the nominee will have to come to the AFL-CIO -- which basically during Presidential years is a coalition of political machines. With the Exception of Jerry Wurf's political panzers, which can be unleashed by the militant State, County and Municipal Employees, the most effective political operations are in the hands of such forces as the building and construction trades, the Seafarers and the Ladies' Garment Workers. And don't overlook the unaffiliated United Mine Workers, troubled as this union is.

Not one of these forces takes McGovern as their political pin-up boy. Thus, while the Municipal Employees whose machine now, at Wurf's direction, is headed by Bill Welsh , until recently the fortyish chap who really ran the Democratic National Committee, may eventually cheer McGovern (as may the needle trades), the big money and manpower push for him, if nominated, won't be there.

Why? It's all in his statement given to Washington newsman Friday when asked if a reconciliation with Meany would not require the labor leader to admit he had been wrong in his hard-line foreign policy views for 20 years.

"Yes, it does," said McGovern, "and he has been wrong. His (Meany's) support for the cold war and Vietnam has been a mistake. I can't compromise with him on that. I am willing to admit to him I made a mistake, maybe he can."

Well, Meany isn't exactly about to recant 20 years of anti-Communism in exchange for an apology on one Senatorial vote. Nor is he apt to overlook what he believes is a gratuitous face-slapping. He'll return it in kind. Just watch.

Ohio, Indiana In Primary Spotlight

AP Political Writer

Moderate to heavy voting in Ohio and a light turnout in Indiana were reported today as Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey battled Sen. George S. McGovern in Ohio and Gov. George C. Wallace in Indiana in a bid to vault to the front in the Democratic presidential race.

In Ohio, difficulties arose at many Cleveland area polling places. Voters at many precincts said they were given improper instructions for filling out the long Democratic ballot.

On Cleveland's East Side, early morning voters said they arrived to find polling places locked or voting machines still sitting outside the polls.

The Cuyahoga County Board of Elections held an emergency meeting to discuss the problems. About 400,000 voters, 300,000 of them Democrats, were expected to turn out in the county's 1,788 polling places.

Skies we e overcast and threatening in some areas.

A spot check of polling places around Indiana indicated a light turnout in the first hours of balloting. The weather was generally good, with partly cloudy skies and some rain reported in the northern portion of the state.

Humphrey and McGovern both started the day in Cleveland. The Minnesota senator toured several polling places, started early in the morning, and talked on a television talk show.

McGovern, meanwhile, taped a television interview before flying to New York to pick up what aides called "a fairly important" endorsement. They did not elaborate.

The Minnesota senator was favored in both elections, though McGovern mounted a late Ohio surge helped by endorsements from several key political leaders who had backed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

Humphrey and McGovern wound up their Ohio campaigning Monday night in Cleveland, paying visits to a Metropolitan Opera performance and a series of bowling alleys respectively.

Muskie, who abandoned active primary campaigning after several crippling setbacks, was on the ballot in both Ohio and Indiana.

Primaries were also being held today in Alabama and the District of Columbia.

In Ohio, which was electing 153 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in its first contested primary since 1956, showers across the state threatened to hold the turnout below the record 2.3 million forecast by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Humphrey, McGovern, Muskie and Sen. Henry M. Jackson were competing for virtually all Ohio delegate slots. Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy also had a handful of delegates running. There was no preference vote as such, but voters could check the presidential candidate's name and thus vote for all his delegates.

Voting hours were 6:30 a.m. EDT to 6:30 p.m. The long paper ballot was expected to produce a slow count tonight.

In Indiana, which will allocate 76 convention votes on the basis of today's presidential preference voting, some 1.2 million votes were expected between 7 a.m. EDT and 7 p.m.

Wallace made airport stops Monday at Kokomo, Columbus and Bedford while Humphrey, spending the day in Ohio, appeared on four television stations.

In Alabama, 29 of the state's 37 convention delegates were being elected by district. ProWallace candidates were running in 25 Districts, while the state Democratic organization was running anti-Wallace candidates in 17.

Senate primaries were also being held in Alabama. Veteran Sen. John J. Sparkman was opposed by six challengers in the Democratic race, while former Postmaster General Winton M. Blount headed a field of four Republicans. If leaders fail to poll a majority, runoffs will be h May 30.

In the D ict of Columbia, the Democratic presidential competition was between a group headed by the Rev. Walter E. Fauntroy, the capital's nonvoting delegate to Congress, and an uncommitted slate. Democrats elect 20 delegates who will cast 15 votes at the party's national convention.

In today's four companion Republican primaries, President Nixon faced only minor challenges from two delegates pledged to Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. on the Ohio ballot and 10 entered in Alabama.

McGovern centered his Ohio campaign on an effort to appeal to the discontented, Wallace-leaning blue collar workers, many of whose union leaders backed Humphrey. He also sought to cut into the Minnesotan's strength in black areas.

Jackson, who concentrated on rural areas in the southern part of the state, attacked his senatorial rivals with increasing vigor as the campaign ended. At a Cleveland news conference Monday, he charged Humphrey "wants to be all things to all men," while McGovern "is associated with the new left wing of our party."

In Indiana, the main issue was Wallace himself. After Muskie decided last month against campaigning in the state, most major elements in the Democratic party threw their support to Humphrey.

Wallace contended in his three speeches Monday that his Democratic opponents had picked up issues he advocated in the 1968 campaign, especially tax reform, and said that Humphrey in Florida this year picked up his 1968 call for "getting loafers off the welfare rolls."

Hearnes Hints He May Call Special Session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today "the chances are very good" that he will call a special session of the Missouri Legislature in September.

Under new annual session rules, the legislature must return Sept. 6 for a 10-day session to consider any bills vetoed by the governor after May 15.

The governor told a news conference that requirement would make it easier to call a special session then to consider such things as resulation of Blue Shield and Blue Cross becuuse the legislators will be coming back anyway.

Hearnes said he was especially disappointed the bill put Blue Cross and Blue Shield under regulation of the state Division of Insurance failed because "they wouldn't let it go to the jury."

Even if defeated, he would have been disappointed, he said. But the fact that lobbyists had more influence than the governor and prevented a vote on the measure was especially disappointing.

He said it would be a good thing to have the two biggest health insurance organizations regulated because it would protect the little man.

Besides, he said, the medical association and other lobbyists against the bill "fought it for reasons never made public."

Hearnes declined to speculate what other topics might be included in any special session call. Under the Constitution, the legislature may consider only the topics he outlines in such a session.

He mentioned the legislature's failure to extend the ADC-U bill which allows families to continue to draw aid to dependent children when a father still lives in the home, and expressed regret that it didn't get out of the senate budget control committee headed by Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, the Senate president pro tem.

But he said he had not yet come across any other welfare bills that might jeopardize the state's compliance with federal welfare regulations--a subject that has caused frequent legislative crises in the past.

The governor said he did not yet know how much the bills passed by the legislature might cost, but said additional revenue would be needed next year if present programs are to be funded and additional services are wanted by the people.

Any candidate for governor who says otherwise by talking about streamlining the government and making it more efficient to save the needed money, he said, "is not telling the people the truth, and I'll tell them that."

Major Advance Toward Arms Accord Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev, in recent secret exchanges, have scored "a major advance" toward a U.S.-Soviet missiles-curb accord.

In announcing this late Monday, the White House implied that submarine missiles will be included in a first-stage strategic-arms-limitation-talks (SALT) deal that also will cover antiballistic missiles (ABMs) and nuclear land-based missiles.

An agreement is expected by the time of Nixon's May 22-29 Soviet visit.

Submarine-launched nuclear missiles have been a major issue in recent SALT negotiations. Envoys at the U.S.-Soviet talks are said to have pretty much agreed on ABM and intercontinental-ballistic-missile (ICBM) limits.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said, without naming any specific weapons, that the major advance from the Nixon-Brezhnev exchanges "relates to the broadening of the scope of an offensive freeze."

Nixon sent U.S. Ambassador Gerard C. Smith back to the SALT sessions at Helsinki Monday with new instructions, and the President expects the Soviet negotiator there to get new instructions too which can lead to a mutually acceptable agreement, Ziegler said.

"Over the past several weeks the President has had a number of confidential exchanges with Mr. Brezhnev concerning SALT," Ziegler told newsmen after a one-hour Nixon meeting with Smith and top diplomatic, military and intelligence advisers.

"The purpose of these exchanges was to see whether major remaining issues in these negotiations could be satisfactorily resolved," he said.

"On the basis of these confidential exchanges the President has concluded the possibilities of reaching agreement have substantially increased."

Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, who met secretly with Brezhnev in Moscow April 20-24, was said to have discussed SALT as well as Vietnam with the So viet leader.

Asked whether the important SALT negotiations would stay on the track whatver happens in Vietnam, Ziegler said: "We have never associated the negotiations in Helsinki with what happens in Vietnam."

If the United States and the Soviet Union do reach a SALT agreement, it will be the first superpower deal to hold down their nuclear-arms race since the strategic-weapons parley began in 1969.

The initial accord is expected to include a numerical ceiling on long-range missiles, including a limit on the giant Soviet SS9 rockets which the Pentagon says could knock out U.S. Minuteman ICBMs.

A numbers limit is anticipated also for ABMs, with each side restricted to perhaps two ABM complexes apiece.

Enemy Launches Fresh Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — Flushed with victory in the far north, North Vietnamese troops launched new attacks today in the populous coastal lowlands and forced South Vietnamese troops from another base in the central highlands to the west.

With all of northernmost Quang Tri Province in enemy hands, the North Vietnamese radio boasted that the new province to the south, Thua Thien, which includes the old imperial capital of Hue, was doomed.

The South Vietnamese were trying to set up a defense line north of Hue and 35 miles south of the demilitarized zone. Hue is 32 miles south of Quang Tri.

Authorities began a drive to weed out suspected Viet Cong agents in Hue, a city of 200,000 now swollen with 150,000 refugees. Officials disclosed 600 suspected Viet Cong agents had been seized in Hue the past two days.

The North Vietnamese conquered Quang Tri Province by using a wide variety of weapons new to the war, tanks, longrange artillery, and sophisticated antiaircraft artillery. To this was added today a heatseeking missile.

Brig. Gen. Thomas W. Bowen, deputy senior U.S. adviser in the far north, said the missile, fired from a hand-held launcher, was used for the first time in the war and brought down a U.S. helicopter. The four-man crew, a U.S. adviser and two Vietnamese were killed.

Tax Record Inspection Vetoed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill to let cities levying sales taxes inspect and audit state Revenue Department records was vetoed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Monday as unnecessary.

He said the cities already get all possible information from the department.

In addition, he said, such audits would "seriously weaken, if not destroy, the confidentiality of tax records" and would require additional personnel in the revenue department at extra cost to the state.

Jaeger Loses Driver License

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The driver's license of Joseph Jaeger Jr., state parks director, has been revoked for one year.

The action was taken Monday by Magistrate Temple Morgett after a 90-minute hearing.

A highway patrolman arrested Jaeger, 53, of Jefferson City, April 13 on U. S. Highway 63 south of Columbia.

Professor Committed

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Verne Arthur Smith, a former University of Missouri history instructor, was ordered committed to the Fulton State Hospital Monday after he pleaded innocent of a 1965 murder because of mental illness.

Smith entered his plea during a hearing before Judge Frank Meyer of Sedalia, who was assigned as a special judge in the case. Smith was charged with murdering Harry Hackworth, 18, a student from St. Louis, Oct. 18, 1965.

The Missouri Supreme Court overturned Smith's 1967 conviction on the grounds the defendant was administered drugs by doctors at the state hospital during his first trial.

We made a men's cologne so subtle, we thought no one would notice.

But they did.

Tabac Original's fragrance is smokey, and very masculine. But certainly unassuming.

Because of this subtlety, and because the fragrance stays with you an inordinately long time, it had become the most sought-after men's cologne in Europe and the rest of the world.

But we worried about how such an understated cologne would do in America. And we worried about our Tabac Original™ After-Shave, Soap, Hair Tabac and Spray Deodorant.

We worried for nothing. Tabac Original has become as sought-after as it is in the rest of the world. Which leads us to believe it isn't how loud a cologne speaks, it's what it has to say.

Men Easier Deceived Than Women At Auto Repair Shops

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Say, mister, think you're a pretty fair weekend mechanic?

Jack McCormick, head of Arizona's consumer fraud division, says you'd better think again.

"I believe it's partly due to male chauvinism," McCormick says. "Men take pride in thinking they know something about mechanics. However, we've found that men with some knowledge in this field are deceived far more often at auto repair shops than women.

"We've found that women are much more likely to go to a second shop for advice," he says.

McCormick, an assistant Arizona Attorney general, says mechanics have a more difficult time talking women into authorizing repairs which aren't needed in the first place.

"If you're going to engage in bogus sales activity with a woman who knows nothing about mechanics, you have three hurdles to clear," McCormick says.

"First, you have to impress on her something is wrong, then you have to indicate to her the gravity of the situation and then you have to talk her into the repairs," McCormick says.

McCormick says his office has investigated about 60 cases in Arizona involving auto fraud—and men were the victims in nearly every instance.

Nixon Women To Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Nixon sticks mainly to foreign travels that probably will dominate front pages this spring, his wife and two daughters will fan out across the country in less-publicized goodwill appearances.

The women's vote is expected to be a big factor in the presidential race, the pollsters say, and the Nixon family's trips will be a low-key bid for it.

But White House spokesman Helen Smith contends these travels—already under way—are not exclusively campaign trips. She says the presidential family is just accepting some of the usual run of invitations it gets.

In recent weeks, though, as the Democrats fight it out on the primary battlegrounds, the Nixon name is kept in the local news by Pat Nixon, Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox appearing in places from Florida to California.

And, Mrs. Smith predicts, such trips will be stepped up.

The Nixon women have the fleet of presidential jets at their disposal. They use the military planes for personal trips because of Secret Service anxieties about aerial hijackings.

The only acknowledged campaign appearances are four big regional women's conferences. The White House said the GOP National Committee would pick up the travel tab for those appearances.

Hardly a week has gone by this year without some scheduled appearance for the Nixon women. They have ranged into a dozen states—some of them several times—and visited a variety of organizations, including 4-H clubs, institutions for the blind and retarded, garden clubs, historic sites and events that President Nixon has been unable to attend.

But last week, on a trip into New York State, Tricia said flatly she was out campaigning for her father and predicted there will be many political appearances, including trips on behalf of other Republican candidates. She said her husband, Edward Cox, would join her on the campaign trail after he graduates next month from Harvard Law School and takes the bar exam.

Julie has said she'll be campaigning more, too. But, she maintained the majority of her campaigning would come after her father is nominated at the GOP convention. Her husband, David Eisenhower, grandson of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, is a naval officer and thus barred from partisan politics.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ross

Ross-Triplett

ESSEX — The South Pleasant Valley General Baptist church was the setting for the April 8 wedding of Vicki Anne Triplett and Jim L. Ross of Sikeston.

The wedding was performed at 3 p.m. by the Rev. Doyle Corlew.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Triplett of Essex and the groom is the son of Mrs. Celia Ross, 119 Fourth St., Sikeston.

The church was decorated with two large arrangements of blue daisies and white gladiolis and two baskets of potted palms. Arched candelabras with lighted blue candles and blue satin ribbon marking the family pews completed the church decorations.

Wayne Sanderson of Sikeston sang "More" and was accompanied by Terry DeJournett of Essex.

Dentistry Ideal For Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dentistry is an ideal profession for women, yet they continue to shun it, says Dr. C. A. Laughlin, president of the American Dental Association.

During a visit for the 75th annual meeting of the Southern California Dental Association, Laughlin told newsmen that only 1.2 per cent of the nation's dentists are women and the number is declining annually.

Women should consider dentistry, he added, because they would be able to "set their own hours, establish a part- time practice from their homes and serve their family as well as patients."

The Rev. Gervase Ingoldsby performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with two large bouquets of gladiolis. Side altars were decorated with bouquets of mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer organza and chantilace. The gown was a bouffant silhouette with a jewel neckline and bishop sleeves ending with wide, close fitting cuffs. A full, chapel length train was attached.

Her headpiece was a forward cap of chanti- lace, highlighted with clusters of crystals, edged with pearls and centered with loops of pearls. Attached was a thee tiered veil of English illusion.

Mrs. Leanna Jones, of Benton, cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Cornelia Dannenmueller of Oran, sister of the groom and Janet Hanselman of Oran, cousin of the bride.

The bride's brother, Vincent Cook, was the best man. Kenny Menz of Perkins and Cornell Dannenmueller, brother of the groom, were groomsmen.

Following a weekend wedding trip, the couple made their home in Oran.

Ann Landers

Long Beards Quite A Tale

Dear Ann Landers: You were wrong when you attributed the world's longest beard to a man named Phillip Henson. You said he was 6'2", had a ten-year growth, and his beard, which swept the carpet, measured six feet eight inches in length.

According to the back files of the Beckley W. Va. Raleigh-Register (we run your column) an item and picture dated June 8, 1923, reported that a man named Zach T. Wilcox of Carson City, Nevada had a beard 12 feet 3 inches long when the article appeared in print.--The Micro-Film Wizard of Beckley.

Dear Ann Landers: The man with the longest beard was not Phillip Henson, it was A.B. Norton of Dallas, Texas. Mr. Norton, a college student in 1844, vowed he would not shave until Henry Clay was elected President of the United States. When he died at the age of 80, Mr. Norton's beard was so long he had to roll it up and keep it tucked in his vest. The undertaker who buried him was my great-grandfather. He wrote in the family Bible, "We buried a man today whose beard measured 12 feet 9 inches." So he holds the record, Ann.---Fifth Generation Texan.

Dear Ann: I hope you don't mind being corrected, but the longest beard, according to the Guiness Book of World's Records, belonged to Jules Dumont, born in France in 1856. His beard measured 11 feet 11½ inches long when he died in 1911.---Pontiac, Illinois Reader.

Dear Ann Landers: Your beardologist is in error. Phillip Henson's beard was not the world's longest. As the General Manager for the Believe It Or Not Museum, we have specialized in the unusual for 50 years. The world's record is held by a man named Valentine Tapley. He vowed that if Abraham Lincoln were elected President he would never shave again. Fifty years later, when Mr. Tapley died, his beard measured 12-½ feet.--Believe It Or Not-- J.H. Long, Ripley Museum, Chicago.

Dear Mr. Long: I'd like to believe it, but read the next letter:

Dear Ann: Phillip Henson's beard was nothing compared to my great-grandfather's. Hans Langseth was born and raised in Norway and lived most of his life in Barney, North Dakota. When he died in 1927 his beard was 17-½ feet long. The beard is now on display in the Smithsonian Institution. Many articles and pictures were published about my great-grandfather's fantastic beard. Both Life magazine and the Minneapolis Tribune did some wonderful pieces. The Minot Daily News clipping is the funnies so I am sending it along with this letter. Anyone who wants proof can go to Washington and see for himself.---Lynn Langseth--Great Grandchild Of The Winner.

Dear Ann: By this time you're probably plenty sick of beard measurements. Did you know the longest head of hair in the world belonged to Swami Pandarasannadhi who lived in the Thiruvada Thurai monastery in India? It was 26 feet in length.---S.P. of J.

Dear Ann: Since you seem interested in hair-raising stories, did you know that the longest moustache belonged to Masuriya Din of Calcutta? His moustache was 102 inches from tip to tip.---Chico, California.

Dear Ann: You are a chauvinist pig. You reported that the longest beard in the world belonged to a man named Henson. Why didn't you mention the woman who holds the record? Her name was Janice Deveree of Kentucky. When she died in 1884 her beard was 14 inches long.--- Louisville Fan.

Dear Fan: Sorry about the oversight. Since you seem to be up on such matters I wonder if you can tell me if Janice Deveree slept with her beard over the blankets or under the blankets?

Is an upcoming wedding driving you bananas? Ann Landers' comprehensive booklet, "The Bride's Guide," gives you the facts from the initial announcement to the last bill and who should pay it. To receive your copy, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Endangered Species Bill Dedicated To Youth

A newly passed endangered species bill has been dedicated to the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and 4-H members according to an announcement made Saturday by State Rep. Tony Heckemeyer at the Keep America Beautiful Rally at the football field.

The bill will protect animals in danger of becoming extinct from being used for commericial purposes.

After January of 1973 it will be against the law to buy or sell such items as alligator shoes or tiger skin rugs in Missouri.

Heckemeyer explained that the legislature felt such a bill would provide one more safeguard for the future environment. Missouri is one of the first states to enact this type of legislation.

Saturday's rally was planned and co-ordinated by Girl Scout Cadette troop 159 led by Mrs. Harold Yarbrough. A flag ceremony was conducted by Boy and Girl Scouts and a skit presented by the Sikeston 4-H clubs, "Excuse Me Your Litter is Showing," was presented.

During the morning more than 700 young people filled 1,500 fifty-pound seed bags with litter and glass. They worked primarily along Malone street, Murray Lane, Ables Road and Ingram Road.

There was a litter pickup on vacant lots including one on Maple street and two on South West street.

Scout troops reported an assortment of litter, gallon pain cans, dish pans, clothing and shoes. A large number of beverage bottles and cans were picked up.

Between noon and 3 p.m. the filled bags were taken by the 4-H members and their fathers to the landfill.

Long Distance Truck Driver Is Petite 18-Year-Old Girl

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Pretty, petite 18-year-old Peggy Ney of New Philadelphia, has more miles to her credit backing a vehicle than girls (or boys) her age have logged driving forward, since after graduating from high school, she became a truck driver.

Peggy was hired by her father, Jim Ney, as second driver on his transcontinental trips. A "navigator of the concrete sea," Ney has traveled in 49 states and Canada for more than 20 years.

Each trip Peggy and her dad make to the West Coast takes about 10 days with 15 cargo drops. They make two such trips a month. The rig Peggy handles is 55 feet long, a 1970 Diamond Reo with gross weight of 73,000 pounds. The huge vehicle is equipped for the comfort of the drivers with air-conditioning, sleeping compartments, power plant for electricity and cooking equipment.

Some women drivers need automatic transmission, but 113-pound Peggy has no difficulty shifting 15 gears.

Her father observed that on the West Coast there are many husband and wife truck driving teams but the women drive mostly on interstate-turnpike roads. His daughter is no easy-road driver, Ney points out. She drives on two-lane and dirt roads as well as the modern avenues of transportation.

Peggy is no sunshine driver, either. She guides the rig in temperatures from 120 degrees above in desert areas to 42 below in the canyons. She has driven through passes where the snow was as high as the trailer (12 feet, six inches). In comparison to her predecessors Peggy's boss considers her top-notch in efficiency.

Just because Peggy is a second driver, that does not mean she isn't qualified, trained and willing to do everything that goes with transcontinental driving. When snow or ice is encountered both drivers get out of the truck and put the chains on the oversize wheels.

Blind Bandleader And Family Share A Normal, Active Live

NEW YORK (AP) — When Wayne and Marin Foster talk about their life together they have to remind each other not to sound like a mutual admiration society. He's blond, stocky, handsome. She's slim, curly-haired, pretty. He plays the piano, organ, accordian, guitar. She plays bass guitar, drums and sings. They run a family business that consists of six bands, and he conducts one of those bands himself. Their four daughters are musically inclined.

From all appearances, it's a happy family, but there's one hitch. Wayne Foster has been blind since he was 10 years old. How can a blind person lead such an active life?

"The more I live with him the more I find out he can do everything but see," Marin says. "People tell me I describe everything to him, but I'm not even aware of it. The children are great with details though — they'll describe someone and include details like wing-tipped shoes, or a pinch pleated skirt.

"There isn't a line between Wayne's role and mine," she goes on. "When the children were little, he'd change the diapers sometimes. Now, if he wants to cook, he cooks.

"Our offices are attached to our home. We've decorated together and instead of hanging a lot of pictures we have sculpture. In fact, when each of the children brought her first art home from school, it was all in relief."

"We even have codes in our work," Foster explains. "For instance, if everything is going well, and people are dancing, Marin says, 'green.' If there's a problem, she says 'red'."

Foster says he was interested in music since he was 2, encouraged by his musical family. He learned to play the piano first, and later took up the accordion because he needed something portable. He started his first band when he was 14.

He and Marin met at a dance when she was 16. He was attending Adelphi University and working weekends. Marin learned to sing so it would be easier to stay awake during the long hours while the band was playing.

Foster is not shy about his blindness. He admits his family encouraged him to start a band because he was "socially inactive," and he points out that it is important for a blind person to be concerned about his appearance.

"It's a very unfortunate situation, but it's how the world sees you that matters," he says. "And a significant fact I can dwell upon is that it is most important for a blind person to find a friend who can guide him to an attractive way of dressing."

The Fosters feel, in their life, as well as their work, they should emphasize the positive. For that reason, they stay away from gloomy songs.

What's The Law

Neighbor's Tree Cannot Be Cut

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Myron and Wilbur were neighbors who argued from different premises. Their main dispute, however, had to do with an old and stately oak tree that, while solely on Myron's property overhung Wilbur's drain and sewer pipes. What's more, Myron absolutely refused to trim any of the overhanging branches.

After years of being driven nutty by the acorns, Wilbur finally decided to take matters into his own hands. When Myron went on a vacation, Wilbur brought forth his trusty saw and cut down the tree. And, upon discovering his stately oak lying in state upon the ground, Myron sued Wilbur for destroying his property.

"He had no right to come onto my property and chop down my tree," he complained in court. "It was like committing murder."

"It was more like self-defense," was Wilbur's answer. "If I hadn't destroyed that tree, it would have destroyed me. Under the circumstances , since Myron refused to cure the situation, I had every right to do what I did."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Wilbur liable for chopping down the nutty tree?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while he sympathized with Wilbur's problem, he was not justified in taking the law into his own hands even to accomplish what Myron should have done. It is well, established, noted the judge, that a property owner may cut off overhanging branches of a neighbor's tree, or to sue the neighbor for damages and to make him cut down the branches, but he may not enter upon his neighbor's property and cut down the tree. (Based upon a 1950 California Dist. Court of Appeals Decision)

STATE USING OMPUTERS TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS

JEFFERSON CITY -- Computers may not be able to drive automobiles, but Missouri is starting to use them to stop traffic accidents. And so far, things look encouraging.

A case in point:

An eastern Missouri town of 18,000 approached traffic accident prevention in much the same way as other towns. Its police department enforced driving regulations, its road crews kept streets in repair and free of driving hazards and its traffic courts fined and sentenced violators. But accidents continued, and officials were at a loss to find ways of preventing them.

Enter the computer, which analyzed accident reports, and gave this information: Nearly 90 percent of the accidents occurred in an eight- block area of the town's 30 blocks. What's more, the computer pinpointed times of day these accidents were more likely to occur.

Armed with this information, the police department now is concentrating personnel in the eight- block area during the times accidents are most likely to occur. Road crews are looking carefully at the area to spot danger points and needed improvements. And although it's too early to learn if this effort will reduce accidents, at least the town has some direction in making its streets safer.

"The people there didn't even know accidents were occuring in this pattern," Bob Burgess, state director of highway safety, said last week. "Now they have information which can help them reduce accidents. That's the beauty of the STARS system."

STARS, the Statewide Traffic Accidents Records System, was begun in January and is designed to bring all the state's traffic accident together, analyze it and consider programs for reducing accidents.

Before STARS, detailed traffic information was kept in various state and local agencies, but there was no way to tie all this information together. For example, the Department of Revenue kept drivers' and motor vehicle records, the Highway Department kept highway records, the Highway Patrol kept accident reports and the local sheriffs and police departments kept accident and enforcement records. But no where was all this information brought together for analysis.

"Missouri's system of traffic accident records has been fragmented," Col. E. I. Hockaday, superintendent of the Highway Patrol, said. "Until we know where the problem is, we don't know what programs will be effective. That's where STARS will help. It will take some time to get it into full operation -- two years at least but it's a long- range program, and we'll make changes as we go along."

The key to the program is the computer which received information from all agencies collecting accident information, and then compiles and analyzes it. Highway safety officials therefore are beginning to learn the answers to questions such as these: How many accidents occur in Missouri? How many personal injuries are caused by traffic accidents? What is the most common cause of traffic accidents? Until now, these questions could not be answered on a statewide basis.

But STARS is not just an information collecting program.

"The purpose of STARS is to make improvement where improvements are needed," Burgess said."We don't intend to let data lie idly by, but to use it."

For example, the computer can determine how many accidents involve young drivers who had driver education in high school and what the causes of these accidents are. If a specific pattern develops, this information will be relayed to driver education teachers.

The program's cost is minimal and comes largely from a federal grant with Missouri's share $160,000 next fiscal year. There is no cost to cities and counties, and the computer already installed at the Highway Patrol headquarters is being used to analyze the data.

When the system is fully operational, monthly statewide and local accident summaries will be sent Missorui communiites which also can request specific studies to help them solve their particular problems.

The program's success depends largely on local law enforcement agencies which so far seem receptive.

Stoddard To Remodel County Jail

BLOOMFIELD — The Judges of the County Court of Stoddard County have given the green light to a Dexter engineering firm to draw plans and make specifications for the renovation of the county jail.

Since October 1971, the court has been studying conditions at the jail and considering methods, ways and means of providing Stoddard County with a modern facility.

At the request of the county court and John M. Capps, county clerk, Bill E. Duncan, assistant director of correction programs came to the county in October to inspect the jail with Walter Lumpkin and Wayne Potter, law enforcement assistance administrators, all representatives from U. S. Bureau of Prisons.

Duncan returned to Bloomfield in February to give technical assistance and make recommendations. He submitted recommendations to Robert Henzi, executive director of Region 6, of the Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

The county court directed a preliminary report on the Stoddard County Jail to be made by C. R. Trotter and Associates, an engineering firm of Dexter.

The facility will be enlarged, taking the living quarters now occupied by the sheriff and his family and incorporating them into the jail proper.

Book Review

On Poetry of Poe

POE POE POE POE POE POE POE. By Daniel Hoffman. Doubleday & Co. $7.95.

The state of American letters cannot be hopeless when, in a time of confusion and frequently tasteless writing, a poet and professor of literature writes a basically admiring book on Edgar Allan Poe. If ever an American writer set forth rigid standards of aesthetics and then strove through poverty and neglect to uphold them, it was Poe.

Daniel Hoffman is professor of English at the University of Pennsylvania and the author of five books of poetry. The prompting for his latest book with the irritatingly repetitious title obviously comes from his fascination with Poe's verse and prose since high school days.

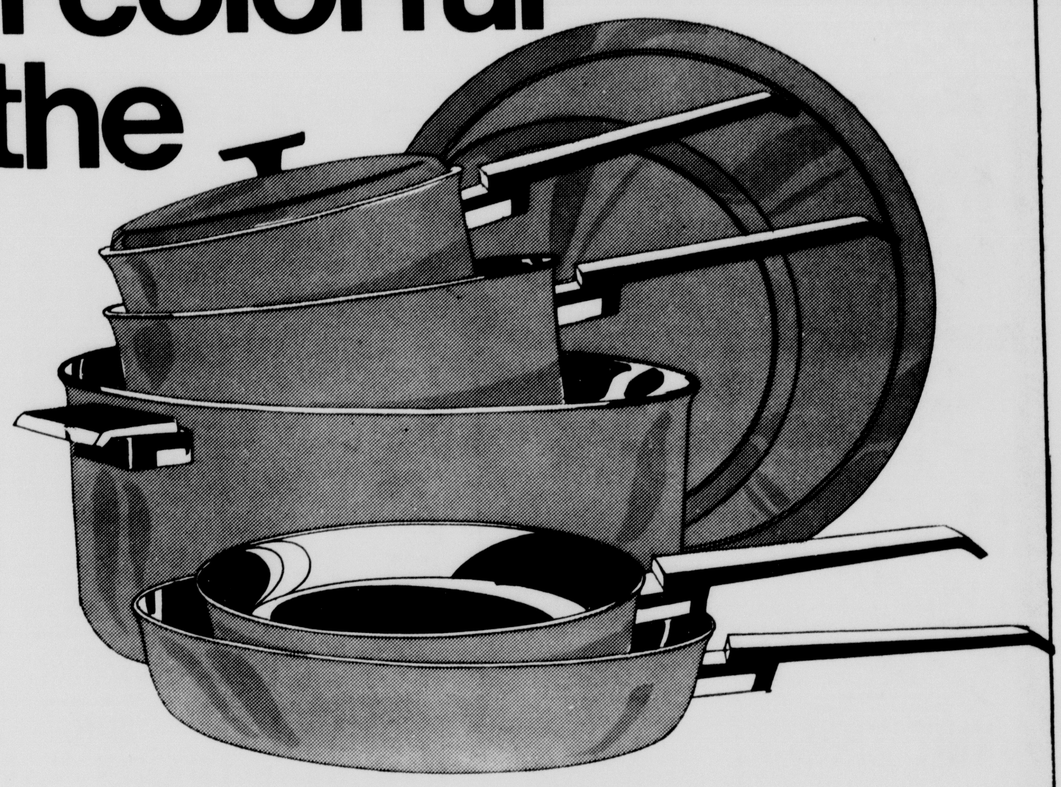

Of course, Hoffman feels he must identify with some of the more sophisticated moderns, T.S. Eliot, for instance, who emphasize what they consider Poe's faults as a poet and critic even as they acknowledge their debt of creative inspiration to him.

For years poor Poe's weird grotesqueries of subject and style have made him fair game to modern psychologists. He is a natural for psychoanalytic treatment, and in this Hoffman is no exception. However, in the age of astronauts, Hoffman's sense of humor redeems him when he cites one analyst who insists Poe's fanciful account of a voyage to the moon represents man's urge to return to the womb!

There are several condescending and irritating mannerisms which Hoffman employs — for example, his frequent attempts to put Poe down with such familiarities as "Eddie" and "Edgarpoe."

Nevertheless, as Hoffman describes and appraises the principal poems and stories, he does not or cannot conceal his very strong sympathy for probably the most unusual genius of our literature. Ronald C. Hood

Reagan Making Inroads With College Crowd

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -- Gov. Ronald Reagan says he's receiving more and more invitations to communicate with college students and "I'm grabbing as many as I can get."

He told a student interviewer Thursday that his new availability stems partly from the relative calm on campuses and the absence of many radical campus leaders.

But mostly, he said, "I'll be honest with you. I think a great many students are being told a great many things that aren't true. Sometimes they're being told that on campus."

Ford Will Cut Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has announced that 1972- model car and truck prices will be trimmed an average of $13 a vehicle to assure that the company's 1972 profits will be within the Price Commission guidelines.

Ford Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee A. Iacocca said the price reductions reflect sevearl major developments of the past six months.

"Our 1972 cars and trucks have been achieving outstanding market acceptance and consequently a greater share of the market," they said.

Ford did not anjounce any plans for rebates on vehicles already sold, but said the new prices will be applicable to all vehicles in dealers' inventories.

There were no immediate reactions from General Motors Corp. or Chrysler Corp.

MESSAGES FROM MARS

pour into the Deep Space Network control center, above, as a dream of generations of scientists comes true with Mariner 9's successful orbiting of the red planet. Continuously sweeping Mars with its two television cameras and specialized instruments to analyze temperature, atmosphere and surface characteristics, the satellite radios data across millions of miles of space to the Pasadena, Calif., center. Left, Dr. Arthur Lane examines the results of an ultraviolet spectrometer experiment. Mariner 9 is programmed for a 90-day orbit to provide man with his first continuous and close-up view of another planet.

AND AWAY THEY GO! A lively crew modeled on notable comic strip characters of the period takes off on a replica of a sightseeing bus circa 1911, one of the featured items in the 29th annual National Antiques Show at New York's Madison Square Garden. More of the same includes, below, a Germany tin taxi from 1910 and a French-produced painted tole tin depot wagon from 1899.

For commercial use or for the home garden the new lettuce, Ithaca, is tops when planted in earliest spring.

This year, for the first time, there is plenty of seed available of a new lettuce, so new it was released for seed production just 2 years ago.

Named Ithaca, for the home of Cornell University, this lettuce was developed by Prof. Peter L. Minotti and Prof. Emeritus George J. Raleigh, both of the Department of Vegetable Crops, New York State College of Agriculture, a part of the university.

Ithaca is intended to be used for commercial lettuce production and it already has proven outstanding in field performance in New Jersey, so that demand for seed is particularly high from that state. But it also is excellent for the home gardener who wants early lettuce that will transplant perfectly in cold, less than perfect spring weather.

Ithaca was bred for spring planting on well-drained mineral soils. It matures early; has a firm, bright green, attractive head with shiny green leaves. Heads in a planting mature at the same time, a characteristic vital for harvesting for commercial use but neither necessary or particularly desirable in the home garden.

Thus it would seem sensible for the home gardener to make several small, successive sowings of Ithaca in a cold frame or seed bed, transplanting the seedlings to the garden as they become large enough.

This would insure a supply of high quality early lettuce and also the best performance from this variety, which needs to be transplanted to mature satisfactorily. But this is its only foible, one that is not too hard to cater to.

Ithaca has 2 characteristics that will particularly endear the variety to the home gardener: it resists tipburn — that browning and drying of the margins of the tender leaves — and it is slow to go to seed after heads have formed.

Reagan Making Inroads With College Crowd

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -- Gov. Ronald Reagan says he's receiving more and more invitations to communicate with college students and "I'm grabbing as many as I can get."

He told a student interviewer Thursday that his new availability stems partly from the relative calm on campuses and the absence of many radical campus leaders.

But mostly, he said, "I'll be honest with you. I think a great many students are being told a great many things that aren't true. Sometimes they're being told that on campus."

Ford Will Cut Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has announced that 1972- model car and truck prices will be trimmed an average of $13 a vehicle to assure that the company's 1972 profits will be within the Price Commission guidelines.

The announcement came Wednesday after Ford had disclosed that its first- quarteer profits of $252 million - $2.44 a share — were the highest for any quarter in its history.

Ford Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee A. Iacocca said the price reductions reflect sevearl major developments of the past six months.

"Our 1972 cars and trucks have been achieving outstanding market acceptance and consequently a greater share of the market," they said.

Ford did not anjounce any plans for rebates on vehicles already sold, but said the new prices will be applicable to all vehicles in dealers' inventories.

There were no immediate reactions from General Motors Corp. or Chrysler Corp.

MESSAGES FROM MARS

pour into the Deep Space Network control center, above, as a dream of generations of scientists comes true with Mariner 9's successful orbiting of the red planet. Continuously sweeping Mars with its two television cameras and specialized instruments to analyze temperature, atmosphere and surface characteristics, the satellite radios data across millions of miles of space to the Pasadena, Calif., center. Left, Dr. Arthur Lane examines the results of an ultraviolet spectrometer experiment. Mariner 9 is programmed for a 90-day orbit to provide man with his first continuous and close-up view of another planet.

AND AWAY THEY GO! A lively crew modeled on notable comic strip characters of the period takes off on a replica of a sightseeing bus circa 1911, one of the featured items in the 29th annual National Antiques Show at New York's Madison Square Garden. More of the same includes, below, a Germany tin taxi from 1910 and a French-produced painted tole tin depot wagon from 1899.

For commercial use or for the home garden the new lettuce, Ithaca, is tops when planted in earliest spring.

This year, for the first time, there is plenty of seed available of a new lettuce, so new it was released for seed production just 2 years ago.

Named Ithaca, for the home of Cornell University, this lettuce was developed by Prof. Peter L. Minotti and Prof. Emeritus George J. Raleigh, both of the Department of Vegetable Crops, New York State College of Agriculture, a part of the university.

Ithaca is intended to be used for commercial lettuce production and it already has proven outstanding in field performance in New Jersey, so that demand for seed is particularly high from that state. But it also is excellent for the home gardener who wants early lettuce that will transplant perfectly in cold, less than perfect spring weather.

Ithaca was bred for spring planting on well-drained mineral soils. It matures early; has a firm, bright green, attractive head with shiny green leaves. Heads in a planting mature at the same time, a characteristic vital for harvesting for commercial use but neither necessary or particularly desirable in the home garden.

Thus it would seem sensible for the home gardener to make several small, successive sowings of Ithaca in a cold frame or seed bed, transplanting the seedlings to the garden as they become large enough.

This would insure a supply of high quality early lettuce and also the best performance from this variety, which needs to be transplanted to mature satisfactorily. But this is its only foible, one that is not too hard to cater to.

Ithaca has 2 characteristics that will particularly endear the variety to the home gardener: it resists tipburn — that browning and drying of the margins of the tender leaves — and it is slow to go to seed after heads have formed.

County Offices To Be Merged

Three counties in Southeast Missouri will no longer have separate probate judge and magistrates if a bill passed by the Missouri legislature goes into effect. The bill has not been signed by the governor.

The bill combines the magistrate and probate judges into one ex-officio magistrate- probate judge in Scott, Dunklin and Butler counties. The two offices run concurrently and will go into effect at the end of the four-year terms in 1974.

John Sides is the probate judge in Scott county and Lloyd G. Briggs of Chaffee is the Scott county magistrate.

The two offices would be combined in 11 Missouri counties with a population from 30,000 to 48,000 except for Platte county.

According to State Sen. Albert M. Spradling of Cape Girardeau the two offices were combined because according to case loads the probate judge did not have enough to do.

In Cape Girardeau county probate was taken from the common pleas court and placed in the probate court. The probate judge was ordered to serve both Cape Girardeau and Jackson.

nominal boss, said "I am saddened to hear of his death. He has been a major figure on the American scene for a long time. He loved this country and we shall miss him."

Acting Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst issued a one-paragraph statement in which he said Hoover's body was found by his maid at approximately 8:30 a.m. today.

"It is with profound personal grief that I announce that J. Edgar Hoover passed away during the night at his residence," Kleindienst said. "His personal physician informed me that his death was due to natural causes."

Hoover, unmarried, dominated the bureau during his lifetime as no man in any other federal agency. Wielding vast power, he was said to lavish on the FBI the pride and possessiveness of a stern and watchful parent.

He joined the bureau as its acting director in 1921 after several years as a $990-a-year Justice Department law clerk, and became director three years later. Born in Washington, D.C., on Jan. 1, 1895, Hoover received his law degree from George Washington University and lived all his life in the District of Columbia.

The Houston Astros traded for a big gun during the off-season after their Toy Cannon lost some firepower.

Getting Lee May has really helped. It's made a better hitter out of little Jimmy Wynn.

The 5-9, 170-pound outfielder is more than pulling his weight with five home runs this season, including a grand slam blast that helped the Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 Monday night.

"I'm smiling now," said Wynn after a big night that also included a double and single and two runs scored.

He should be happier than last season, when he hit only seven home runs all year and plunged to a career-low .205 batting average while sitting in Manager Harry Walker's dog house.

Now batting in front of the power-hitting May, who had 39 homers last season for Cincinnati, Wynn is hitting at a .379 clip with 16 RBI and 15 runs scored.

In the only other games Monday, the New York Mets turned back the San Francisco Giants 7-4 and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 in National League action.

The Astros' victory moved them into a tie with Los Angeles for first place in the National League's West race and shoved the defending World Champion Pirates 4 1/2 games off the pace in the East.

Right-hander Tom Seaver struck out 12 batters in 6 and 23 innings and got relief help from Tug McGraw to post his fourth victory without a loss this season.

Leading 4-3, the Mets broke open the game with three runs in the event' on singles by Bud Harrelson, Tommie Agee, Rusty Staub, Cleon Jones and Jim Fregosi.

Despite Seaver's high strikeout total, he was pulled after giving up home runs to Dave Rader, Chris Speier and Ken Henderson. Little Bud Harrelson, one of the most unlikely long ball hitters in the New York lineup, also drove one out.

Dick Selma, a former relief pitcher, spun a three-hitter and Willie Montanez hit a two-run homer for Philadelphia.

Selma and Claude Osteen of Los Angeles were locked in a scoreless pitching duel until the Dodger southpaw walked Terry Harmon with two out in the eighth and threw a gopher all to Montanez. Selma squeezed out of an eighth-inning jam after Willie Crawford knocked in Los Angeles' lone run with a sacrifice fly.

Blue Ready To Play

BOSTON (AP) — Vida Blue, the Oakland A's sensational young southpaw, was set to end his holdout and sign a 1972 contract today as probably the highest paid major league sophomore in history.

"I'm ready to play," the 22year-old pitcher said late Monday night after arriving in Boston on a non-stop flight from San Francisco and then going into seclusion.

Blue was met at Logan International Airport by Joe Reichler, assistant to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn. He was polite, but not very communicative with the lone sports writer to meet him.

He looked fit, but merely shrugged and occasionally smiled when asked questions, such as how long did he think it would take before he's ready to pitch.

"I've been working out on my own," the 1971 American League's most valuable player and Cy Young Award winner said. "I don't have any plans. I've been on a plane and haven't talked to anyone. All I want now is a good night's sleep."

Blue, who had been holding out for $92,000, agreed to accept a total package of $63,000 to sign with the Athletics. All that's needed now is his signature on a contract. That business had to come first today before he left a motel and moved in with his teammates at a Back Bay hotel, a short distance from Fenway Park where the A's meet the Boston Red Sox tonight.

Kuhn and A's owner Charlie Finley also were due in town for the official signing of one of baseball's top gate attractions.

"I wouldn't miss it," Finley said in Chicago, adding he was "extremely pleased" that wblue was ready to sign.

Finley said the contract terms will be the same worked out last week in a meeting with Blue. The club owner added, "The contract will read $50,000 and on the side will be $13,000 in cash."

In his first full season in the league in 1971, Blue earned $14,750 while compiling a 24-8 record and packing in fans wherever he pitched.

Blue and his attorney, Robert J. Gerst of Los Angeles, have conducted marathon negotiations with Finley. An apparent agreement fell through last Friday when Blue refused to sign a joint announcement of the contract's details.

Kuhn stepped in the next day. As commissioner, he used what he called his general powers to act "in the best interests of baseball" and ordered Finley to keep open his offer to Blue.

Confessions of a Worry Wart

Managing? Not for Pee Wee Reese

By ED HAYES

ORLANDO, Fla.—(NEA)—All these years Pee Wee Reese has been fooling the public.

The little guy was out there playing with the giants of baseball, playing it cool, putting in time as captain of the Dodgers, the Southern white boy who betriended Jackie Robinson. Reese was the guy who had it all under control.

What was there to stew about? They were the carefree, swashbuckling years in Brooklyn, the 1940s and '50s.

Today Pee Wee Reese is 53 and has ulcers.

"I guess I fooled a lot of people," he said.

By his own confession he was a worry wart. If things weren't going right he actually hated putting on his uniform. "There were times," he said, "when I dreaded going to bat . . ."

That's why he's not managing a big-league club today. "I've had several offers," he revealed, "but I have no desire to manage. Maybe it would have been different if I'd stayed in baseball as a coach. But I would've worried too much, and there are so many things to worry about off the field.

"A major league manager has to speak at a lot of banquets, and I never did like that, even after being in TV for two years. To this day if I have to give a speech it bothers me. It worries me until it's over.

"I worried if I went 0-for-5. I'm not about to start worrying over nine guys doing that.

"Mr. O'Malley (Walter F.) always used to say I'd be a manager some day but I said no way."

In 1959 the Dodgers had a date with Cincinnati for an exhibition in Cuba. Manager Walt Alston was unable to make the trip "for some reason and (Chuck) Dressen was at the track, so I had to manage the team. We won both games and on the flight back Mr. O'Malley said, 'See there, Pee Wee! That wasn't so bad, was it?' I said, 'No way, no way.'"

He had something else to worry about when he put his uniform away. Television.

"I didn't think I would last in television," he said. "I didn't want to get into it but they talked me into it."

When Buddy Blattner broke with Dizzy Dean in '59, Gene Kirby asked Pee Wee to hook up with Diz. His answer: "My Lord, no."

But after discussing it with his wife, and Dodger executive Buzzie Bavasi, he changed his mind and uniform. "When I told Buzz what kind of money they were offering me, and a two-year contract, he said that was more money than I'd be able to make coaching for the Dodgers, so I took the job. But talking before millions of people? I knew I just couldn't do it.

"Bavasi said I couldn't turn it down, and that I'd probably foul it up anyway and could always go back to the Dodgers."

PEE WEE REESE, spunky captain and shortstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers during their heyday of the 1940s and '50s, leaps to avoid sliding Peanuts Lowrey while Dodger teammate Jackie Robinson watches in a 1952 game, left. Now, above, Reese, 53, is a public relations man for a baseball bat manufacturer and says he has no desire to get back into baseball as a manager.

Time trials will be at 7:30 p.m. and racing at 8 p.m. There will be a $500 guaranteed purse. Two classes will run -- c and hobby.

Riva Ridge Derby Favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — No Le Hace is ready for Saturday's 98th running of the Kentucky Derby and the size of the field or the condition of the track makes no difference, says trainer Homer Pardue.

Told there could be 20 or more 3-year-olds in the Derby, the veteran horseman pointed out Monday that No Le Hace beat 16 rivals in the Arkansas Derby.

Asked if he worried about an off-track, he noted that his charge won the Lousiaian Derby in the slop and added:

"We can race uphill if they want us to—or they can cover the track with asphalt."

Perhaps influenced by the Spanish meaning of the name No le Hace—it doesn't matter— Pardue also said the son of Candy Spots' placing in today's one-mile Derby Trial doesn't matter.

"He doesn't have to prove anything," said Parude, I just want him to get a little tired and not get hurt."

Also among the 14 Derby hopefuls entered for the Derby Trial, set for 5:30 p.m., EDT, were Paul Mellons' Key to the Mint and Head of the River.

While the early favoritism for the 1 1/4-mile, $125,000-added Derby rested with Mrs. John Tweedy's Riva Ridge and Mrs. Maribel Blum's Hold your Peace, No Le Hace has the credentials to be considered a top contender.

No Le-Hace has won seven of his last nine starts, five in a row and all four races as 3year-old.

TRCC Takes Series, 2-1

POPLAR BLUFF — Three Rivers community college took two of three baseball games fromMineral Area junior college of Flat River Saturday and Sunday.

The Raiders of Coach Joe Blemker split a double header Saturday losing, 8-6, and winning, 6-5 in eight innings. The Raiders won a makeup game Sunday 4-2.

Mark Swagman took the 8-6 loss and Mark Hildbrand won the extra inning affair. Mike Weber picked up the 4-2 win with relief help from John McCulloch in the seventh inning. Mark Hildebrand slammed a home run in the Sunday game.

Three Rivers plays at St. Louis Tuesday against Forest Park Junior College. Thursday the Raiders play Floressant Valley at St. Louis and come back home to take on Floressant Valley in a doubleheader Saturday for the final home games of the season.

Stanley Goodman, board chairman, said the programs calls for 20 to 25 new department stores in the next five years.

He said there will also be a major expansion of the Venture chain into other cities. Presently there are Venture Stores in St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield, Mo. and Peoria, Ill.

Amendments On Ballot Contradict

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The executive director of the Missouri Oil Jobbers Association, John Hahn, said today state voters will face contradictory issues in the November general election in the wake of the legislature's action Sunday night.

The lawmakers decided to send to the voters a governmental reorganization plan that would, among other things, leave the state highway department intact.

Already on the November ballot is a $730 million highway bond issue that would see the highway department incorporated under the authority of the state Transportation Department.

Hahn said there is a 1967 section of the Missouri statutes that says if two contradictory laws or amendments are approved by voters in the same election, the one with the highest number of votes carries.

Hahn said the oil jobbers favor the legislature's streamlining plan because it leaves the highway department and its funds intact.

Puxico Farmer Area's Best

DEXTER — Ronald Tweedy of Puxico was selected outstanding young farmer of the area at the annual Jaycee banquet at the Hickory Log restaurant Monday at 7 p.m.

He won the citation on the basis of financial progress since beginning farming and the use of modern farming methods.

Entries were between 21 and 35.

Chosen second was Dennis Cox of Bernie and third was Larry Riley, also of Bernie.

Winners will be entered in the state competition for Outstanding Young Farmer of Missouri.

Last year's Dexter winner, Clarence Dale Smith, won second place in state competition.

Speaker was Randall Ramsey, candidate for Missouri senate from the 25th district. Jaycee chairman was Tom Love.

Told the boss we wouldn't stand for any more work, and he agreed. Said we'd better spend more time at our desk.

Landfill Plan Given To Council

DEXTER -- Terry Howes of the C. R. Trotter Engineering firm, representing Hester "Heck" Campbell, met with the city council Monday night to discuss the sanitary landfill which Campbell is trying to set up on his land one mile north of Dexter Memorial hospital.

Howes said the land has been inspected and approved by both the division of health and the Missouri Geological Survey for landfill operations.

He pointed out the city dump is unsatisfactory, and the city will be forced to do something about the problem.

If the proposal is approved, it would involve Dexter, Essex, Bernie and Bloomfield, at an annual charge to Dexter alone of $16,700. This would result in an approximate charge of $2.77 per resident per year for a site to dispose of solid wastes.

Mayor Willis Conner appointed a committee of aldermen Lehman Godwin, Richard Miller, and James Carney to check it.

During the meeting new city officers were sworn in and retiring Alderman L. B. Reeves gave up his post to the new alderman of ward three, Robert Curtis.

Lehman Godwin was elected by the council as president of the aldermen.

Mayor Conner appointed committees for the coming term — committee on alleys, streets and police, chairman, James Williams; committee for water, sewers and streets, chairman, Lehman Godwin; city attorney, Paul McGhee; city treasurer, Ernest Kirby; city custodian, George Hopkins;

The council confirmed the list of city offices.

Mayor Conner informed the board of the need of the police department concerning a new base and communications station. He stated that the present system is approximately 14 years old. Conner has been in contact with the Bootheel Law Enforcement Council and was notified that the city could receive a grant on a 75-25 matching basis.

Conner has received two bids on the project with the low bid at $7,593. The council agreed to the need of the station.

An advisory committee of seven Dexter businessmen was appointed by Mayor Conner to make recommendations to the council members on ways to gain additional revenue for the city's general fund. From this the city subsidizes both parks and fire departments.

Those appointed to the committee were Darrell Webb, Joe Weber, Barney Miller, John F. Ullen, Jack Miller, Berry Holder, and attorney, Steven Mitchell.

Conner stated the city cannot continue to subsidize these departments entirely from the money now coming in.

Total disbursements for the city during April were $51,146.74.

J. Edgar Hoover Found Dead Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover, embodiment of the FBI and focus of law enforcement achievement and controversy for nearly half a century, is dead.

The 77-year-old director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation died of natural causes in his home Monday night, the Justice Department announced.

President Nixon, upon hearing of Hoover's death, called him a "truly remarkable man who served the country for 48 years under eight presidents with unparalleled devotion to duty and dedication." Nixon spoke emotionally of his "profound sense of personal loss."

Hoover was a virtual legend in the United States, an "untouchable" who died in office despite efforts by critics in recent years to have him retired.

He had shaped the FBI into a massive, powerful federal agency during his career.

Across Pennsylvania Avenue from the office where Hoover worked, a massive powerful federal building to house the FBI is under construction.

Even before Hoover's death, there had been continuing speculation about whether the new building would be named for him or perhaps might even house his final resting place.

Speculation on a successor to Hoover also began long before his death as political pressure to retire Hoover alternately waxed and waned.

It had seemed almost certain he would retire or be retired if the Democrats beat President Nixon in the November election. Nixon now will be able to pick a successor. Washington, D.C. police chief Jerry Wilson, a recent Nixon law enforcement favorite, had been prominently mentioned as a possible successor before Hoover's death.

Hoover's No. 2 man in the bureau was Clyde A. Tolson, the associate director. The two were long-time colleagues who spent much time together. Tolson, 71, has been in ill health.

Accolades for Hoover flowed almost immediately from Capitol Hill and other locations of government.

Arkansan Dies In Collision

PORTAGEVILLE — One died and nine were injured at 12:40 a.m. today in a two-car collision four miles south of Portageville on Interstate 55.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Mildred Tessley, 28, of Senath, who was critically injured. Also injured in the Tessley car were Bennett Murphy, 23, of Keiser, Ark., with minor injuries, and Panell Curtis, 48, of Keiser, serious injuries.

Six in the second car, all from Detroit, received only minor injuries. They were Issac Brunson, 58, the driver; his wife, Gladys 54; Mary Orr, 34; Earl Junior Orr, 2; Yolanda Martin, 2, Dorothy Martin, 30. The injured were taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti.

According to the highway patrol, the Tessely auto pulled from the shoulder of the road on the highway and into the path of the Brunson car.

Tax Unchanged
Budget Approved

The city council last night approved an $826,775 budget for the new fiscal year.

The budget will be financed through a tax assessment of $1.74 per $100 assessed evaluation which has remained unchanged for the fifth year in a row.

This year's budget is about $227,000 less than last year's total of $1,053,720. The lower budget is a result of less federal funds. Last year's budget included funds for the new administrative building and activity center.

The largest single amount of funds spent in the budget will fall in the public safety area. Forty-four per cent of the budget, or $364,935, will go to police, fire, civil defense, regulatory inspection, and animal protection.

The next largest section is for streets and sanitation. Twenty two per cent, or $181,600 of the budget will go to engineering, streets, and garbage disposal.

Both the general government fund and the recreation fund will receive 9.6 per cen of the budget. The library and parks will receive $79,500, while $79,235 will be spent for government operations.

The contingency fund is $35,000. This year's budget doesn't provide much leeway for financial mistakes.

A total of 43.8 per cent of the budget, or $360,840, will go for salaries and wages. No other expenditure comes close to matching this figure.

According to the anaylsis of property valuations submitted with the budget, the total value of the Scott County section of Sikeston has risen from $12 million in 1963-64, to an estimated $18,670,000 in the 1973 fiscal year.

At the same time, the value of the New Madrid County part of town has risen from $383,585 to $1,975,000.

The budget shows a general rise in the cost and services provided by the city. The taxation rate has remained stable for a long period and has decreased from $2 in 1960.

The taxation rate of $1.74 is the lowest since the 1964-65 fiscal year, when the tax was $1.55.

While no new taxes were discussed, Ernest Harper, representing retail businessmen in town, spoke out against a proposed cigarette and liquor tax. He said it was a nuisance tax which would end up costing firms business.

A group of blacks came before the council last night seeking help in a search for jobs. One member of the group, the concerned Citizens of Sikeston, said, some of the men are veterans who fought for their country in Vietnam, and then returned home to make a living, but could find no jobs available.

They said they weren't seeking jobs with the city because it already employes about 25 per cent non-whites. The city is 17 per cent non-white.

They said they wanted the council's help in opening up job opportunities in businesses.

The council decided to hold an informal meeting later this week with the group to discuss what can be done.

John Scott, a member of the Sikeston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People told the council residents of Sunset Addition are concerned about the high crime rate there. He said there was a great amount of fear in the community because of the hammer beating of Mrs. Beulah Wyse. Mrs. Wyse has returned home from a hospital but police are still unable to question her and may not be able to if her condition does not improve.

The council approved the proposed Cole Subdivision and the re-subdivision of the west half of block two of the Clayton Heights Addition.

The board approved the rezoning of two lots owned

Johnny Gene Rodgers, charged with burglary and larceny was granted probation without supervision after he received concurrent sentences of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. He pleaded guilty to charge of breaking into Randolph's Dollar Store in Gideon March 18 and stealing merchandise valued at $25.

Howard Young was fined $25 and costs on charge of exhibiting at .38 caliber pistol Feb. 26 in the presence of Marilyn McClanahan of Kewanee.

Following settlement of a work assignment dispute out of court between Boilermakers Local 27 and Pipefitters Local 562, engaged in power plant construction in St. Jude Industrial Park, Judge Ragland dismissed a petition for restraining order and injunction; motioned for adjudication in contempt of restraining order; and dissolved temporary restraining order in a civil action filed by David Casson and Jack L. Griffith, representatives of local 27, against Carl Shaw and Cecil Dewies, representative of local 562.

Diehlstadt Mayor Quits, Cites Discord

DIEHLSTADT — Paul Norman, who has served a 25- year tenure as mayor, resigned Monday night at a meeting of the town board.

Norman, a building contractor, said he resigned because of disagreement with three members of the board.

"The new board, which includes Lawrence Burton, L. C. Allen and James Howard, has seemed to oppose everything other members of the board have tried to do," Norman said. "They (the new board) think we have too many stop signs already and don't want any more erected, and they don't believe in law and order.

"They are not in favor of appointing a city attorney, and without such an attorney, we cannot enforce city ordinances and laws as they stand."

Norman was elected in April of 1971 to a two- year term.

He said he would not under any circumstances accept the position again even if re- elected by the townspeople.

"I've served in the position long enough," he said. "There's no point in trying to better the community with such opposition as those members of the board. When the vote remains three to two on everything there's little you can do."

The fifth member of the board, Grover Morrow, resigned from his post as chief of police April 18. L. C. Allen, 78, also a board members was elected to the position by a majority vote of three to two. Allen, Howard and Burton made up the majority.

Jaycees Will Buy Glass Crusher

The glass reclaimation project will soon have a glass crusher to make storing and shipping of reclaimed glass easier.

The project, sponsored by the Jaycees, is an attempt to collect glass that would normally end up littering roadsides or creating problems for garbage disposal.

The Jaycees are considering buying a crusher in Memphis, according to Bill Burch, who is helping to find the crusher.

Burch said the crusher, which will cost around $400, fits on top of a 50-gallon drum and is driven by a five horsepower motor. It grinds glass into powder.

The crusher will be stored at the Sheltered Workshop. Proceeds from the sale of the glass will go to the workshop for continuation of the program.

Once the glass is crushed and packaged it will be shipped to the Owens-Illinois Glass manufacturing plant in Alton, Ill., for recycling.

Other items to be pruchased with the glass crusher include safety glasses and gloves for those who handle the machine.

Once crushed, the glass will be shipped to Alton.

NEW MADRID — In a double session Monday night the city council heard matters of business pertaining to the retiring council in the first session and swore in newly elected officials and named appointees in the second session.

Two Charged In Escape

A Sikeston woman and a juvenile, accused of helping a man escape from police Sunday afternoon, face charges of interfering with a police officer, charges which on conviction could get each of them up to five years in prison.

Police charge the pair helped Willie "We We" Harris, accused of felonious assault in the April 15 beating of Charles Earl Lee of Benton, escape from two policemen.

Lee was attacked at the Community Club on Felker St.. His wounds were severe enough that he was taken to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis.

Charged are Mrs. Ida Mae Howard, 226 Dixie, and Harris's younger brother who was released on parole last week.

Police gave this account:

Officer Odis Applewhite and Auxiliary Officer Tom Bean went to the Howard home. They were let in by Mrs. Howard. They then told Harris, who was sitting in the living room, that he was under arrest.

Harris broke and ran for the back door. He was caught there by the officers. At that point Harris's brother ordered the police to release him and put his hand in his pocket, as though he had a gun. Bean let go of Harris, drew his gun, and covered the brother.

Applewhite then began dragging Harris to the door. Harris began screaming for help, saying the police didn't have a warrant. At that point, Mrs. Howard began pushing Applewhite, and caused him to release Harris. Harris ran out the door and escaped.

Harris's brother was taken into custody and was in city jail today. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John Wilson issued a warrant for Mrs. Howard's arrest yesterday.

Harris is still at large.

We hear frequent reference to "modern advertising" when problems of trade are discussed.

Yet, advertising is anything but modern. Advertising is as old as commerce – as old as civilization. Best of the recovered records of the ancient Phoenicians, the first great merchants of the world, are advertisements.

In ancient Roman cities, the central bulletin board, the newspaper of two thousand years ago, was used largely for advertising. The advertisements posted on Roman bulletin boards did not differ greatly from those which appear in newspapers of today.

The colonial newspaper in American came into existence primarily to provide information on goods available from newly arrived ships. The new goods provided by the industrial revolution were sold by an increase in advertising -- advertising which financed the beginning of a free and independent press in the United States.

By 1865 slogans connected with "modern" advertising were common. Some of these were: "Advertising is a blister that draws trade." Or, "Ceasing to advertise in dull times is like tearing out a dam because the water is low." Or, according to Horace Greely, to do without advertising was "to close one's eyes to the light and insist upon living in perpetual darkness."

Thus, the major change in advertising over the centuries has been in quantity; a great deal more is needed today because of the increased variety in goods and services, and because of the rapid change in the consumer situation in every community.

Columnist Paul Scott reports a Commerce Department official has admitted the sale of American equipment for a Russian truck factory will "increase Russia's military potential." He says Rauer Meyer made the admission in a letter to Anthony Sutton, research fellow at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace. There are "other" considerations, Meyer said, such as "the fact such equipment is essentially available abroad." Columnist Scott says American reconnaissance photos show that trucks destroyed in Laos by U. S. bombers are the same as those built in Russia in the truck plant constructed for the Russians by the Ford Motor Company in the 1930s. The Commerce Department, by the way, is refusing to reveal the name of the American firms that are selling the American equipment for the new truck factory on the Kama river. A group of U. S. Representatives headed by John Schmitz of California has declared war on the secrecy surrounding the equipment licensees and will try to make the administration reveal if it plans to offer the Russians credit.

A well known nutritionist recently told a Heart Association gathering that Americans are now a nation of junk eaters because of the frantic rat-race for the dollar in this country.

Children too often eat at ball parks from vending machines, at the movies, at school or at snack stands, eating foods which were once looked upon as after-dinner treats. This diet doesn't give them the nutrition needed to build strong and healthy bodies.

Adults, including mothers who have left home seeking the dollar and who thus aren't preparing hot meals for the children, race through a hamburger or sandwich in a frenzied day of tension and push. Many gulp sandwiches and dulling drinks with them, conducting business at mealtime.

All this is bad for nutrition, nerves and long life which some Americans will learn too late.

REAL PULL POWER

Don Robinson, one of the regular contributors to the American Press magazine, came up with some interesting facts on a survey that was taken about 25 years ago. Even though rather musty, the facts are extremely interesting.

The defunct American Press Assoc. employed a top rated research organization to make one study of readership of a small town weekly newspaper. The formula for the research was based on a Continuing Study of Metropolitan dailies which was attracting a lot of attention at this time.

A comparison of the results of the one study of a weekly with the results of the studies of dailies was amazing--for it showed that advertising in a small weekly received about seven times the readership of the average advertisements in a big daily.

Mr. Robinson went on to point out: "if that one study, which made a slight ripple in advertising circles and then sank into musty files, had been followed by other studies and led to a major research project on behalf of other weeklies, it is quite possible that the smaller newspapers might today be in the forefront of media used by National advertisers."

The APA was unable to get the backing for continuing research and nobody has done much about it since.

Mr. Robinson concluded that Warren Grieb, who heads the New Newspaper advertising Bureau, Inc., may lift the small town newspapers out of last place in the advertising league and make them a major contender for national advertising.

BLOODBATH IN VIETNAM

Our government's Vietnam policy of late has seemed to be governed by political expediency rather than by strategic and moral considerations. Strategically, our withdrawal from Southeast Asia would signal a major communist victory. But we must also never forget our moral responsibility to help protect the South Vietnamese from the massacre which would inevitably follow a communist takeover.

A little noticed report prepared by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee contains this startling statement: "A Communist victory in Vietnam almost certainly would be followed by massive bloodletting, probably involving several million victims." The lengthy report contains expert opinions supported by documents and the facts of history. It concludes that at least 100,000 and more likely one million or more persons would be killed by the communists should they achieve victory. Some communist defectors have estimated the death toll at three million.

One important chapter of the document explores what happened in North Vietnam after the communists took power there. A Rand Corporation consultant made a special study of the reports of the International Control Commission, concluding that from 50,000 to 100,000 North Vietnamese were massacred. The Communist Central Committee in 1955 had set a minimum number of five persons per village to be killed. Many more persons would have been killed had they not been able to escape to South Vietnamese.

The massacres in Hue when the Vietcong had control there foreshadow what would happen throughout the country. Our government has earned a reputation for giving high regard to moral considerations. If we abandon the people of South Vietnam to massacre, we will have lost all claim to this reputation. HLH.

CHICAGO (AP) – Another polltaker rang the doorbell again last weekend.

Some people are on the lists for pornographic mail or invitations to all-expense-paid trips to Mexico to look at parking lots. I get all the polltakers.

"Hi, are you watching television?"

"Yeah."

"Who are you watching?"

"Kareem Abdul Jabbar."

"What primaries is he entered in?"

"He's not in a primary. He plays professional basketball for the Milwaukee Bucks."

"I see. Well, I'm conducting a private poll on the presidential candidates and the primaries."

"But the Illinois primary was over a month ago."

"Yes, I know. But our client is very interested in learning who you would have voted for if you hadn't voted for the man you did vote for."

"Why?"

"Well, sir, you see since there are so many clients, excuse me, so many candidates, and so many primaries, it's very likely that some candidates will drop out of the race and that would strengthen our client's position, especially if he could secretly reveal the results of a private poll showing that he would have won various primaries that he lost.

"Oh."

"So, would you mind telling me who you would have voted for if you didn't vote for the man you voted for."

"Don't you want to know who I voted for?"

"It's immaterial. It only matters who your second choice would be. Sometimes it's better to lose in New England, the South, the Midwest and the Far West as long as you can say you were the next choice. That shows broad appeal."

"What's the difference why you lost so long as you lost?"

"I think it's like sports. It's nice for managers and coaches to say they lost because of the layoff or because of the tight schedule, you know."

"Yeah, but the fans don't believe that."

"What do they believe?"

"They believe if you lost it's because you weren't good enough."

"I'm sorry, sir. My client could never accept that as a poll result. Thanks anyway. See you after the California primary."

"You'll still be taking primary polls after the last primary?"

"Oh, sure. At least several candidates already have asked for samplings showing that most people don't believe in primary results anyway."

Hal Boyle is ill.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A prominent ad agency broke off its campaign to help Senator Jim Eastland's rival in Mississippi's Democratic primary after the agency was promised it might get a cut of President Nixon's lucrative campaign advertising.

Eastland, of course, is the Senate Judiciary chairman who bailed out Richard Kleindienst, the President's choice for attorney general, during the ITT hearings. Before the first witness was heard, Eastland declared his faith in Kleindienst and, thereafter, steered him helpfully through the stormy hearings.

Eastland was also the lone Democrat who voted with the Republicans, in the end, to shut off the hearings to avoid any more embarrassing testimony.

Yet, despite the appearance of a blatant political deal, the parties to it insist it can all be explained away as fast as you can say ITT'

Here are the facts:

Taylor Webb, a moderate Leland, Miss., lawyer, decided early this year to run against the owlish Eastland, whose power in the Senate is based on 30 years seniority.

Webb resisted pressure to keep out of the race and announced his candidacy. He then sought an advertising agency to handle his campaign, but four in a row turned him down.

He was compelled, finally, to go out of the state for help, and he signed up the respected Houston firm of Culberson, Heller and Norton.

"Before I signed with these people, I asked if they knew what they were getting into," Webb told my associate Les Whitten. "Bob Heller and Jim Culberson both said they did.

Webb advanced the agency $7,500. The Houston firm cashed the check and started producing TV spots. On April 15, they were still working loyally for Webb against Eastland when peppery Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., one of their key clients, flew into Houston.

It's an open secret in Washington that Tower is an errand boy for the White House. He notified the Houston ad agency that if they wanted to stay in his good graces, they would have to drop Webb.

Earlier, Tower had promised the agency to seek the Texas contract for President Nixon's campaign with its million in billings. This, too, was in the balance.

As one of the partners, Ed Norton, explained to us: "Tower told us months earlier he would try to get us the presidential business. We felt that before during and after (the meeting with Tower), he intended to help us."

Tower told us that he had reaffirmed his commitment to the young agency at the meeting. "I said I would try to get some of the Nixon business for them but I'd have done that for them anyway," he advised us.

Within 24 hours of Tower's warning to the agency, another partner, Bob Heller, was on the phone with an outraged Taylor Webb. Recalls Webb: "Heller told me he was going to withdraw from my campaign against Senator Eastland." Heller denied to us that he had mentioned Eastland's name.

What makes this all the more curious is that Tower is a Republican and Eastland a Democrat. Normally, Republicans don't help Democrats to win re-election to the Senate.

The ad agency put out the story that they had dropped the Webb account solely because they were too busy with the Tower campaign. But the agency knew how busy they would be before they signed on with Webb.

We have now discovered that agency partner Norton, after begging off Webb's campgain allegedly because of too much work, flew secretely to Washington on April 27 to seek Nixon's political advertising. In short, Norton went to Washington to see that Nixon's advertising team delivered on Tower's promise.

Norton talked to the "November Group," as the Nixon advertising team is called. He spoke to the group's executive vice President, Phil Joanou, who works under the direction of former Attorney General John Mitchell.

Mitchell also was handled with great gentleness by Senator Eastland during the ITT hearings.

Joanou promised to consider the Houston agency when it comes time to dish out the advertising accounts.

Footnote: Joanou, Norton, Heller, Tower and Eastland all insist they were not party to any deal. Norton specifically denied persistent reports that Fred LaRue, a former White House aide and now special assistant to Mitchell, had joined Tower in putting heat on the Houston agency to drop the Webb account. LaRue, an old friend of Eastland, couldn't be reached. Tower, in a chat with us from Texas, stoutly denied that the White House had asked him to act in Eastland 's behalf. Tower said that when Webb threatened to sue the ad agency, he told them to go along and take Webb's account. Eastland, himself, cautious as an old bear, commented: "Hell, I don't know a thing about it. If John Tower was doing something for me, I think he would have talked to me about it."

JIMMY'S PREDICTIONS

Jimmy the Greek, the famous Las Vegas oddsmaker who prepares his political odds for us, rates Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern even in the critical Democratic primary in Ohio today (Tuesday).

With George Wallace out of the race, the Greek believes Henry Jackson will pick up many Wallace voters and, therefore, will roll up a respectable total. But the chances are 50-to-1 against Jackson's winning, Jimmy believes. Ed Muskie's prospects, since he has withdrawn from the race, are also 50-to-1.

In the last primary Jimmy predicted for us, he called the results in Florida right on the nose.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Ted Kennedy's Letter: McGovern's Needling Meany May Cost Senator Heavy Labor Support Even If Nominated.

WASHINGTON — There comes to hand a note just sent me by Ted Kennedy which proves that a political pragmatist is born not made. And this missive arrives at the same moment George Meany has gotten off one of those "Rum, Romanism an; Rebellion" statements which proves that being a Ph. D. even in labor history does not a politician make.

Sen. McGovern, feeling his primary oats has, it seems to me, just told off the powerful, now completly politcally mobilized labor movement (at least the AFL-CIO's Committee on Policital Education (COPE). The professorial South Dakotan, feeling confident of rolling into the Democratic convention with over 1,000 delegates, may well have thrown away the only viable machinery in the Democrats' infrastructure. Without labor's machinery first and money second, no Democratic nominee can win in November, I do believe.

McGovern has just said he cannot compromise with the 20-year position of AFL-CIO President George Meany and most of the labor movement on the war and foreign policy. And the euphoris self-assured Senator wants Meany to admit his "mistake." Obviously the smoke billowing out of labor's national headquarters' eighth floor is too sulphuric to come from Meany's famed cigars.

At which point in what seems to be the unmaking of a Presidential candidate (or even nominee), there should be entered the note from Ted Kennedy who wrote me, in part:

"...Although, as I have said, I will not be part of the ticket in 1972, I can assure you that I will be part of the team in order to see victory for the Democrats in 1972.

"I consider the trade union movement an indispensable unit of that team and we are doing our best at this time through our schedule to warm up for the main event in November...."

The Massachusetts Senator has hit the trail literally and figuratively -- banquet after banquet, union convention after convention. He has written a piece on the massive use of scientific engineers on the problems of the big cities for the AFL-CIO's Scientific and Professional unit's journal. He has just spoken for the Steelworkers, just been virtually nominated by the Auto Workers, is heading for Jack Potofsky's men's clothing workers and Paul Jennings' International Union of Electrical Workers conventions. All right through to the end of June.

He has not tackled McGovern. But not out of any passionate political devotion. He just has not wanted to do to the South Dakotan what "Bobby" did to Gene McCarthy -- no bloodletting, no outburst of bitterness wanted, no cutting up the team.

He wants that team united and in season -end form next fall and he knows the power is inside labor.

And labor may be the power inside the convention. Up in Meany's "801" headquarters the reckoning is there will be at least 500 union officials as convention delegates -- if Hubert Humphrey wins the pruning primaries. Especially in California where the union confederation, led by one of Meany's intimates, former Ambassador John Henning, is high geared for action.

If McGovern wins the primaries, there will be but 150 union delegates. Not much. The attitude now is, well then let him have it. There's the morning after.

And that morning the nominee will have to come to the AFL-CIO -- which basically during Presidential years is a coalition of political machines. With the Exception of Jerry Wurf's political panzers, which can be unleashed by the militant State, County and Municipal Employees, the most effective political operations are in the hands of such forces as the building and construction trades, the Seafarers and the Ladies' Garment Workers. And don't overlook the unaffiliated United Mine Workers, troubled as this union is.

Not one of these forces takes McGovern as their political pin-up boy. Thus, while the Municipal Employees whose machine now, at Wurf's direction, is headed by Bill Welsh , until recently the fortyish chap who really ran the Democratic National Committee, may eventually cheer McGovern (as may the needle trades), the big money and manpower push for him, if nominated, won't be there.

Why? It's all in his statement given to Washington newsman Friday when asked if a reconciliation with Meany would not require the labor leader to admit he had been wrong in his hard-line foreign policy views for 20 years.

"Yes, it does," said McGovern, "and he has been wrong. His (Meany's) support for the cold war and Vietnam has been a mistake. I can't compromise with him on that. I am willing to admit to him I made a mistake, maybe he can."

Well, Meany isn't exactly about to recant 20 years of anti-Communism in exchange for an apology on one Senatorial vote. Nor is he apt to overlook what he believes is a gratuitous face-slapping. He'll return it in kind. Just watch.

Ohio, Indiana In Primary Spotlight

AP Political Writer

Moderate to heavy voting in Ohio and a light turnout in Indiana were reported today as Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey battled Sen. George S. McGovern in Ohio and Gov. George C. Wallace in Indiana in a bid to vault to the front in the Democratic presidential race.

In Ohio, difficulties arose at many Cleveland area polling places. Voters at many precincts said they were given improper instructions for filling out the long Democratic ballot.

On Cleveland's East Side, early morning voters said they arrived to find polling places locked or voting machines still sitting outside the polls.

The Cuyahoga County Board of Elections held an emergency meeting to discuss the problems. About 400,000 voters, 300,000 of them Democrats, were expected to turn out in the county's 1,788 polling places.

Skies we e overcast and threatening in some areas.

A spot check of polling places around Indiana indicated a light turnout in the first hours of balloting. The weather was generally good, with partly cloudy skies and some rain reported in the northern portion of the state.

Humphrey and McGovern both started the day in Cleveland. The Minnesota senator toured several polling places, started early in the morning, and talked on a television talk show.

McGovern, meanwhile, taped a television interview before flying to New York to pick up what aides called "a fairly important" endorsement. They did not elaborate.

The Minnesota senator was favored in both elections, though McGovern mounted a late Ohio surge helped by endorsements from several key political leaders who had backed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

Humphrey and McGovern wound up their Ohio campaigning Monday night in Cleveland, paying visits to a Metropolitan Opera performance and a series of bowling alleys respectively.

Muskie, who abandoned active primary campaigning after several crippling setbacks, was on the ballot in both Ohio and Indiana.

Primaries were also being held today in Alabama and the District of Columbia.

In Ohio, which was electing 153 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in its first contested primary since 1956, showers across the state threatened to hold the turnout below the record 2.3 million forecast by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Humphrey, McGovern, Muskie and Sen. Henry M. Jackson were competing for virtually all Ohio delegate slots. Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy also had a handful of delegates running. There was no preference vote as such, but voters could check the presidential candidate's name and thus vote for all his delegates.

Voting hours were 6:30 a.m. EDT to 6:30 p.m. The long paper ballot was expected to produce a slow count tonight.

In Indiana, which will allocate 76 convention votes on the basis of today's presidential preference voting, some 1.2 million votes were expected between 7 a.m. EDT and 7 p.m.

Wallace made airport stops Monday at Kokomo, Columbus and Bedford while Humphrey, spending the day in Ohio, appeared on four television stations.

In Alabama, 29 of the state's 37 convention delegates were being elected by district. ProWallace candidates were running in 25 Districts, while the state Democratic organization was running anti-Wallace candidates in 17.

Senate primaries were also being held in Alabama. Veteran Sen. John J. Sparkman was opposed by six challengers in the Democratic race, while former Postmaster General Winton M. Blount headed a field of four Republicans. If leaders fail to poll a majority, runoffs will be h May 30.

In the D ict of Columbia, the Democratic presidential competition was between a group headed by the Rev. Walter E. Fauntroy, the capital's nonvoting delegate to Congress, and an uncommitted slate. Democrats elect 20 delegates who will cast 15 votes at the party's national convention.

In today's four companion Republican primaries, President Nixon faced only minor challenges from two delegates pledged to Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. on the Ohio ballot and 10 entered in Alabama.

McGovern centered his Ohio campaign on an effort to appeal to the discontented, Wallace-leaning blue collar workers, many of whose union leaders backed Humphrey. He also sought to cut into the Minnesotan's strength in black areas.

Jackson, who concentrated on rural areas in the southern part of the state, attacked his senatorial rivals with increasing vigor as the campaign ended. At a Cleveland news conference Monday, he charged Humphrey "wants to be all things to all men," while McGovern "is associated with the new left wing of our party."

In Indiana, the main issue was Wallace himself. After Muskie decided last month against campaigning in the state, most major elements in the Democratic party threw their support to Humphrey.

Wallace contended in his three speeches Monday that his Democratic opponents had picked up issues he advocated in the 1968 campaign, especially tax reform, and said that Humphrey in Florida this year picked up his 1968 call for "getting loafers off the welfare rolls."

Hearnes Hints He May Call Special Session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today "the chances are very good" that he will call a special session of the Missouri Legislature in September.

Under new annual session rules, the legislature must return Sept. 6 for a 10-day session to consider any bills vetoed by the governor after May 15.

The governor told a news conference that requirement would make it easier to call a special session then to consider such things as resulation of Blue Shield and Blue Cross becuuse the legislators will be coming back anyway.

Hearnes said he was especially disappointed the bill put Blue Cross and Blue Shield under regulation of the state Division of Insurance failed because "they wouldn't let it go to the jury."

Even if defeated, he would have been disappointed, he said. But the fact that lobbyists had more influence than the governor and prevented a vote on the measure was especially disappointing.

He said it would be a good thing to have the two biggest health insurance organizations regulated because it would protect the little man.

Besides, he said, the medical association and other lobbyists against the bill "fought it for reasons never made public."

Hearnes declined to speculate what other topics might be included in any special session call. Under the Constitution, the legislature may consider only the topics he outlines in such a session.

He mentioned the legislature's failure to extend the ADC-U bill which allows families to continue to draw aid to dependent children when a father still lives in the home, and expressed regret that it didn't get out of the senate budget control committee headed by Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, the Senate president pro tem.

But he said he had not yet come across any other welfare bills that might jeopardize the state's compliance with federal welfare regulations--a subject that has caused frequent legislative crises in the past.

The governor said he did not yet know how much the bills passed by the legislature might cost, but said additional revenue would be needed next year if present programs are to be funded and additional services are wanted by the people.

Any candidate for governor who says otherwise by talking about streamlining the government and making it more efficient to save the needed money, he said, "is not telling the people the truth, and I'll tell them that."

Major Advance Toward Arms Accord Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev, in recent secret exchanges, have scored "a major advance" toward a U.S.-Soviet missiles-curb accord.

In announcing this late Monday, the White House implied that submarine missiles will be included in a first-stage strategic-arms-limitation-talks (SALT) deal that also will cover antiballistic missiles (ABMs) and nuclear land-based missiles.

An agreement is expected by the time of Nixon's May 22-29 Soviet visit.

Submarine-launched nuclear missiles have been a major issue in recent SALT negotiations. Envoys at the U.S.-Soviet talks are said to have pretty much agreed on ABM and intercontinental-ballistic-missile (ICBM) limits.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said, without naming any specific weapons, that the major advance from the Nixon-Brezhnev exchanges "relates to the broadening of the scope of an offensive freeze."

Nixon sent U.S. Ambassador Gerard C. Smith back to the SALT sessions at Helsinki Monday with new instructions, and the President expects the Soviet negotiator there to get new instructions too which can lead to a mutually acceptable agreement, Ziegler said.

"Over the past several weeks the President has had a number of confidential exchanges with Mr. Brezhnev concerning SALT," Ziegler told newsmen after a one-hour Nixon meeting with Smith and top diplomatic, military and intelligence advisers.

"The purpose of these exchanges was to see whether major remaining issues in these negotiations could be satisfactorily resolved," he said.

"On the basis of these confidential exchanges the President has concluded the possibilities of reaching agreement have substantially increased."

Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, who met secretly with Brezhnev in Moscow April 20-24, was said to have discussed SALT as well as Vietnam with the So viet leader.

Asked whether the important SALT negotiations would stay on the track whatver happens in Vietnam, Ziegler said: "We have never associated the negotiations in Helsinki with what happens in Vietnam."

If the United States and the Soviet Union do reach a SALT agreement, it will be the first superpower deal to hold down their nuclear-arms race since the strategic-weapons parley began in 1969.

The initial accord is expected to include a numerical ceiling on long-range missiles, including a limit on the giant Soviet SS9 rockets which the Pentagon says could knock out U.S. Minuteman ICBMs.

A numbers limit is anticipated also for ABMs, with each side restricted to perhaps two ABM complexes apiece.

Enemy Launches Fresh Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — Flushed with victory in the far north, North Vietnamese troops launched new attacks today in the populous coastal lowlands and forced South Vietnamese troops from another base in the central highlands to the west.

With all of northernmost Quang Tri Province in enemy hands, the North Vietnamese radio boasted that the new province to the south, Thua Thien, which includes the old imperial capital of Hue, was doomed.

The South Vietnamese were trying to set up a defense line north of Hue and 35 miles south of the demilitarized zone. Hue is 32 miles south of Quang Tri.

Authorities began a drive to weed out suspected Viet Cong agents in Hue, a city of 200,000 now swollen with 150,000 refugees. Officials disclosed 600 suspected Viet Cong agents had been seized in Hue the past two days.

The North Vietnamese conquered Quang Tri Province by using a wide variety of weapons new to the war, tanks, longrange artillery, and sophisticated antiaircraft artillery. To this was added today a heatseeking missile.

Brig. Gen. Thomas W. Bowen, deputy senior U.S. adviser in the far north, said the missile, fired from a hand-held launcher, was used for the first time in the war and brought down a U.S. helicopter. The four-man crew, a U.S. adviser and two Vietnamese were killed.

Tax Record Inspection Vetoed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill to let cities levying sales taxes inspect and audit state Revenue Department records was vetoed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Monday as unnecessary.

He said the cities already get all possible information from the department.

In addition, he said, such audits would "seriously weaken, if not destroy, the confidentiality of tax records" and would require additional personnel in the revenue department at extra cost to the state.

Jaeger Loses Driver License

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The driver's license of Joseph Jaeger Jr., state parks director, has been revoked for one year.

The action was taken Monday by Magistrate Temple Morgett after a 90-minute hearing.

Professor Committed

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Verne Arthur Smith, a former University of Missouri history instructor, was ordered committed to the Fulton State Hospital Monday after he pleaded innocent of a 1965 murder because of mental illness.

Smith entered his plea during a hearing before Judge Frank Meyer of Sedalia, who was assigned as a special judge in the case. Smith was charged with murdering Harry Hackworth, 18, a student from St. Louis, Oct. 18, 1965.

The Missouri Supreme Court overturned Smith's 1967 conviction on the grounds the defendant was administered drugs by doctors at the state hospital during his first trial.

We made a men's cologne so subtle, we thought no one would notice.

But they did.

Tabac Original's fragrance is smokey, and very masculine. But certainly unassuming.

Because of this subtlety, and because the fragrance stays with you an inordinately long time, it had become the most sought-after men's cologne in Europe and the rest of the world.

But we worried about how such an understated cologne would do in America. And we worried about our Tabac Original™ After-Shave, Soap, Hair Tabac and Spray Deodorant.

We worried for nothing. Tabac Original has become as sought-after as it is in the rest of the world. Which leads us to believe it isn't how loud a cologne speaks, it's what it has to say.

Men Easier Deceived Than Women At Auto Repair Shops

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Say, mister, think you're a pretty fair weekend mechanic?

Jack McCormick, head of Arizona's consumer fraud division, says you'd better think again.

"I believe it's partly due to male chauvinism," McCormick says. "Men take pride in thinking they know something about mechanics. However, we've found that men with some knowledge in this field are deceived far more often at auto repair shops than women.

"We've found that women are much more likely to go to a second shop for advice," he says.

McCormick, an assistant Arizona Attorney general, says mechanics have a more difficult time talking women into authorizing repairs which aren't needed in the first place.

"If you're going to engage in bogus sales activity with a woman who knows nothing about mechanics, you have three hurdles to clear," McCormick says.

"First, you have to impress on her something is wrong, then you have to indicate to her the gravity of the situation and then you have to talk her into the repairs," McCormick says.

McCormick says his office has investigated about 60 cases in Arizona involving auto fraud—and men were the victims in nearly every instance.

Nixon Women To Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Nixon sticks mainly to foreign travels that probably will dominate front pages this spring, his wife and two daughters will fan out across the country in less-publicized goodwill appearances.

The women's vote is expected to be a big factor in the presidential race, the pollsters say, and the Nixon family's trips will be a low-key bid for it.

But White House spokesman Helen Smith contends these travels—already under way—are not exclusively campaign trips. She says the presidential family is just accepting some of the usual run of invitations it gets.

In recent weeks, though, as the Democrats fight it out on the primary battlegrounds, the Nixon name is kept in the local news by Pat Nixon, Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox appearing in places from Florida to California.

And, Mrs. Smith predicts, such trips will be stepped up.

The Nixon women have the fleet of presidential jets at their disposal. They use the military planes for personal trips because of Secret Service anxieties about aerial hijackings.

The only acknowledged campaign appearances are four big regional women's conferences. The White House said the GOP National Committee would pick up the travel tab for those appearances.

Hardly a week has gone by this year without some scheduled appearance for the Nixon women. They have ranged into a dozen states—some of them several times—and visited a variety of organizations, including 4-H clubs, institutions for the blind and retarded, garden clubs, historic sites and events that President Nixon has been unable to attend.

But last week, on a trip into New York State, Tricia said flatly she was out campaigning for her father and predicted there will be many political appearances, including trips on behalf of other Republican candidates. She said her husband, Edward Cox, would join her on the campaign trail after he graduates next month from Harvard Law School and takes the bar exam.

Julie has said she'll be campaigning more, too. But, she maintained the majority of her campaigning would come after her father is nominated at the GOP convention. Her husband, David Eisenhower, grandson of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, is a naval officer and thus barred from partisan politics.

The church was decorated with two large arrangements of blue daisies and white gladiolis and two baskets of potted palms. Arched candelabras with lighted blue candles and blue satin ribbon marking the family pews completed the church decorations.

The bride wore a full length bridal gown in white nylon sheer highlighted by Juliet sleeves. Nylon lace Appliques trimmed the A-line skirt front and sheer illusion yoke. Ribbon trimmed with lace daisies accented the waistline and sleeves and full chapel train.

Marilyn Tucker was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Triplett, sister of the bride, Sheila Gaylord and Melanie Bain, Sarah Ross, sister of the groom was the flower girl.

Dentistry Ideal For Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dentistry is an ideal profession for women, yet they continue to shun it, says Dr. C. A. Laughlin, president of the American Dental Association.

During a visit for the 75th annual meeting of the Southern California Dental Association, Laughlin told newsmen that only 1.2 per cent of the nation's dentists are women and the number is declining annually.

Women should consider dentistry, he added, because they would be able to "set their own hours, establish a part- time practice from their homes and serve their family as well as patients."

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Dannenmueller

Dannenmueller-Cook

ORAN -- Guardian Angel Catholic church was the scene April 15 of the wedding of Sheila Tyann Cook and Mark Steven Dannenmueller.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Cook of Oran and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Dannenmueller of Oran.

The Rev. Gervase Ingoldsby performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with two large bouquets of gladiolis. Side altars were decorated with bouquets of mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer organza and chantilace. The gown was a bouffant silhouette with a jewel neckline and bishop sleeves ending with wide, close fitting cuffs. A full, chapel length train was attached.

Her headpiece was a forward cap of chanti- lace, highlighted with clusters of crystals, edged with pearls and centered with loops of pearls. Attached was a thee tiered veil of English illusion.

Mrs. Leanna Jones, of Benton, cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Cornelia Dannenmueller of Oran, sister of the groom and Janet Hanselman of Oran, cousin of the bride.

The bride's brother, Vincent Cook, was the best man. Kenny Menz of Perkins and Cornell Dannenmueller, brother of the groom, were groomsmen.

Ushers were Robert Cook, of Morley, cousin of the bride and Jerome Dannenmueller of Chaffee, brother of the groom.

Elmer Seyer of Oran was the soloist and his wife was the accompaniest.

Following the ceremony a reception and dance was held at the Knights of Columbus hall. Carolyn Dannenmueller, sister of the groom and Debbie Driskill, niece of the groom, attended the guest book.

Ann Landers

Long Beards Quite A Tale

Dear Ann Landers: You were wrong when you attributed the world's longest beard to a man named Phillip Henson. You said he was 6'2", had a ten-year growth, and his beard, which swept the carpet, measured six feet eight inches in length.

According to the back files of the Beckley W. Va. Raleigh-Register (we run your column) an item and picture dated June 8, 1923, reported that a man named Zach T. Wilcox of Carson City, Nevada had a beard 12 feet 3 inches long when the article appeared in print.--The Micro-Film Wizard of Beckley.

Dear Ann Landers: The man with the longest beard was not Phillip Henson, it was A.B. Norton of Dallas, Texas. Mr. Norton, a college student in 1844, vowed he would not shave until Henry Clay was elected President of the United States. When he died at the age of 80, Mr. Norton's beard was so long he had to roll it up and keep it tucked in his vest. The undertaker who buried him was my great-grandfather. He wrote in the family Bible, "We buried a man today whose beard measured 12 feet 9 inches." So he holds the record, Ann.---Fifth Generation Texan.

Dear Ann: I hope you don't mind being corrected, but the longest beard, according to the Guiness Book of World's Records, belonged to Jules Dumont, born in France in 1856. His beard measured 11 feet 11½ inches long when he died in 1911.---Pontiac, Illinois Reader.

Dear Ann Landers: Your beardologist is in error. Phillip Henson's beard was not the world's longest. As the General Manager for the Believe It Or Not Museum, we have specialized in the unusual for 50 years. The world's record is held by a man named Valentine Tapley. He vowed that if Abraham Lincoln were elected President he would never shave again. Fifty years later, when Mr. Tapley died, his beard measured 12-½ feet.--Believe It Or Not-- J.H. Long, Ripley Museum, Chicago.

Dear Mr. Long: I'd like to believe it, but read the next letter:

Dear Ann: Phillip Henson's beard was nothing compared to my great-grandfather's. Hans Langseth was born and raised in Norway and lived most of his life in Barney, North Dakota. When he died in 1927 his beard was 17-½ feet long. The beard is now on display in the Smithsonian Institution. Many articles and pictures were published about my great-grandfather's fantastic beard. Both Life magazine and the Minneapolis Tribune did some wonderful pieces. The Minot Daily News clipping is the funnies so I am sending it along with this letter. Anyone who wants proof can go to Washington and see for himself.---Lynn Langseth--Great Grandchild Of The Winner.

Dear Ann: By this time you're probably plenty sick of beard measurements. Did you know the longest head of hair in the world belonged to Swami Pandarasannadhi who lived in the Thiruvada Thurai monastery in India? It was 26 feet in length.---S.P. of J.

Dear Ann: Since you seem interested in hair-raising stories, did you know that the longest moustache belonged to Masuriya Din of Calcutta? His moustache was 102 inches from tip to tip.---Chico, California.

Dear Ann: You are a chauvinist pig. You reported that the longest beard in the world belonged to a man named Henson. Why didn't you mention the woman who holds the record? Her name was Janice Deveree of Kentucky. When she died in 1884 her beard was 14 inches long.--- Louisville Fan.

Dear Fan: Sorry about the oversight. Since you seem to be up on such matters I wonder if you can tell me if Janice Deveree slept with her beard over the blankets or under the blankets?

Is an upcoming wedding driving you bananas? Ann Landers' comprehensive booklet, "The Bride's Guide," gives you the facts from the initial announcement to the last bill and who should pay it. To receive your copy, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Endangered Species Bill Dedicated To Youth

A newly passed endangered species bill has been dedicated to the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and 4-H members according to an announcement made Saturday by State Rep. Tony Heckemeyer at the Keep America Beautiful Rally at the football field.

The bill will protect animals in danger of becoming extinct from being used for commericial purposes.

After January of 1973 it will be against the law to buy or sell such items as alligator shoes or tiger skin rugs in Missouri.

Heckemeyer explained that the legislature felt such a bill would provide one more safeguard for the future environment. Missouri is one of the first states to enact this type of legislation.

Saturday's rally was planned and co-ordinated by Girl Scout Cadette troop 159 led by Mrs. Harold Yarbrough. A flag ceremony was conducted by Boy and Girl Scouts and a skit presented by the Sikeston 4-H clubs, "Excuse Me Your Litter is Showing," was presented.

During the morning more than 700 young people filled 1,500 fifty-pound seed bags with litter and glass. They worked primarily along Malone street, Murray Lane, Ables Road and Ingram Road.

There was a litter pickup on vacant lots including one on Maple street and two on South West street.

Scout troops reported an assortment of litter, gallon pain cans, dish pans, clothing and shoes. A large number of beverage bottles and cans were picked up.

Between noon and 3 p.m. the filled bags were taken by the 4-H members and their fathers to the landfill.

Long Distance Truck Driver Is Petite 18-Year-Old Girl

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Pretty, petite 18-year-old Peggy Ney of New Philadelphia, has more miles to her credit backing a vehicle than girls (or boys) her age have logged driving forward, since after graduating from high school, she became a truck driver.

Peggy was hired by her father, Jim Ney, as second driver on his transcontinental trips. A "navigator of the concrete sea," Ney has traveled in 49 states and Canada for more than 20 years.

Each trip Peggy and her dad make to the West Coast takes about 10 days with 15 cargo drops. They make two such trips a month. The rig Peggy handles is 55 feet long, a 1970 Diamond Reo with gross weight of 73,000 pounds. The huge vehicle is equipped for the comfort of the drivers with air-conditioning, sleeping compartments, power plant for electricity and cooking equipment.

Some women drivers need automatic transmission, but 113-pound Peggy has no difficulty shifting 15 gears.

Her father observed that on the West Coast there are many husband and wife truck driving teams but the women drive mostly on interstate-turnpike roads. His daughter is no easy-road driver, Ney points out. She drives on two-lane and dirt roads as well as the modern avenues of transportation.

Peggy is no sunshine driver, either. She guides the rig in temperatures from 120 degrees above in desert areas to 42 below in the canyons. She has driven through passes where the snow was as high as the trailer (12 feet, six inches). In comparison to her predecessors Peggy's boss considers her top-notch in efficiency.

Just because Peggy is a second driver, that does not mean she isn't qualified, trained and willing to do everything that goes with transcontinental driving. When snow or ice is encountered both drivers get out of the truck and put the chains on the oversize wheels.

Blind Bandleader And Family Share A Normal, Active Live

NEW YORK (AP) — When Wayne and Marin Foster talk about their life together they have to remind each other not to sound like a mutual admiration society. He's blond, stocky, handsome. She's slim, curly-haired, pretty. He plays the piano, organ, accordian, guitar. She plays bass guitar, drums and sings. They run a family business that consists of six bands, and he conducts one of those bands himself. Their four daughters are musically inclined.

From all appearances, it's a happy family, but there's one hitch. Wayne Foster has been blind since he was 10 years old. How can a blind person lead such an active life?

"The more I live with him the more I find out he can do everything but see," Marin says. "People tell me I describe everything to him, but I'm not even aware of it. The children are great with details though — they'll describe someone and include details like wing-tipped shoes, or a pinch pleated skirt.

"There isn't a line between Wayne's role and mine," she goes on. "When the children were little, he'd change the diapers sometimes. Now, if he wants to cook, he cooks.

"Our offices are attached to our home. We've decorated together and instead of hanging a lot of pictures we have sculpture. In fact, when each of the children brought her first art home from school, it was all in relief."

"We even have codes in our work," Foster explains. "For instance, if everything is going well, and people are dancing, Marin says, 'green.' If there's a problem, she says 'red'."

Foster says he was interested in music since he was 2, encouraged by his musical family. He learned to play the piano first, and later took up the accordion because he needed something portable. He started his first band when he was 14.

He and Marin met at a dance when she was 16. He was attending Adelphi University and working weekends. Marin learned to sing so it would be easier to stay awake during the long hours while the band was playing.

Foster is not shy about his blindness. He admits his family encouraged him to start a band because he was "socially inactive," and he points out that it is important for a blind person to be concerned about his appearance.

"It's a very unfortunate situation, but it's how the world sees you that matters," he says. "And a significant fact I can dwell upon is that it is most important for a blind person to find a friend who can guide him to an attractive way of dressing."

The Fosters feel, in their life, as well as their work, they should emphasize the positive. For that reason, they stay away from gloomy songs.

What's The Law

Neighbor's Tree Cannot Be Cut

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Myron and Wilbur were neighbors who argued from different premises. Their main dispute, however, had to do with an old and stately oak tree that, while solely on Myron's property overhung Wilbur's drain and sewer pipes. What's more, Myron absolutely refused to trim any of the overhanging branches.

After years of being driven nutty by the acorns, Wilbur finally decided to take matters into his own hands. When Myron went on a vacation, Wilbur brought forth his trusty saw and cut down the tree. And, upon discovering his stately oak lying in state upon the ground, Myron sued Wilbur for destroying his property.

"He had no right to come onto my property and chop down my tree," he complained in court. "It was like committing murder."

"It was more like self-defense," was Wilbur's answer. "If I hadn't destroyed that tree, it would have destroyed me. Under the circumstances , since Myron refused to cure the situation, I had every right to do what I did."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Wilbur liable for chopping down the nutty tree?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while he sympathized with Wilbur's problem, he was not justified in taking the law into his own hands even to accomplish what Myron should have done. It is well, established, noted the judge, that a property owner may cut off overhanging branches of a neighbor's tree, or to sue the neighbor for damages and to make him cut down the branches, but he may not enter upon his neighbor's property and cut down the tree. (Based upon a 1950 California Dist. Court of Appeals Decision)

STATE USING OMPUTERS TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS

JEFFERSON CITY -- Computers may not be able to drive automobiles, but Missouri is starting to use them to stop traffic accidents. And so far, things look encouraging.

A case in point:

An eastern Missouri town of 18,000 approached traffic accident prevention in much the same way as other towns. Its police department enforced driving regulations, its road crews kept streets in repair and free of driving hazards and its traffic courts fined and sentenced violators. But accidents continued, and officials were at a loss to find ways of preventing them.

Enter the computer, which analyzed accident reports, and gave this information: Nearly 90 percent of the accidents occurred in an eight- block area of the town's 30 blocks. What's more, the computer pinpointed times of day these accidents were more likely to occur.

Armed with this information, the police department now is concentrating personnel in the eight- block area during the times accidents are most likely to occur. Road crews are looking carefully at the area to spot danger points and needed improvements. And although it's too early to learn if this effort will reduce accidents, at least the town has some direction in making its streets safer.

"The people there didn't even know accidents were occuring in this pattern," Bob Burgess, state director of highway safety, said last week. "Now they have information which can help them reduce accidents. That's the beauty of the STARS system."

STARS, the Statewide Traffic Accidents Records System, was begun in January and is designed to bring all the state's traffic accident together, analyze it and consider programs for reducing accidents.

Before STARS, detailed traffic information was kept in various state and local agencies, but there was no way to tie all this information together. For example, the Department of Revenue kept drivers' and motor vehicle records, the Highway Department kept highway records, the Highway Patrol kept accident reports and the local sheriffs and police departments kept accident and enforcement records. But no where was all this information brought together for analysis.

"Missouri's system of traffic accident records has been fragmented," Col. E. I. Hockaday, superintendent of the Highway Patrol, said. "Until we know where the problem is, we don't know what programs will be effective. That's where STARS will help. It will take some time to get it into full operation -- two years at least but it's a long- range program, and we'll make changes as we go along."

The key to the program is the computer which received information from all agencies collecting accident information, and then compiles and analyzes it. Highway safety officials therefore are beginning to learn the answers to questions such as these: How many accidents occur in Missouri? How many personal injuries are caused by traffic accidents? What is the most common cause of traffic accidents? Until now, these questions could not be answered on a statewide basis.

But STARS is not just an information collecting program.

"The purpose of STARS is to make improvement where improvements are needed," Burgess said."We don't intend to let data lie idly by, but to use it."

For example, the computer can determine how many accidents involve young drivers who had driver education in high school and what the causes of these accidents are. If a specific pattern develops, this information will be relayed to driver education teachers.

The program's cost is minimal and comes largely from a federal grant with Missouri's share $160,000 next fiscal year. There is no cost to cities and counties, and the computer already installed at the Highway Patrol headquarters is being used to analyze the data.

When the system is fully operational, monthly statewide and local accident summaries will be sent Missorui communiites which also can request specific studies to help them solve their particular problems.

The program's success depends largely on local law enforcement agencies which so far seem receptive.

Stoddard To Remodel County Jail

BLOOMFIELD — The Judges of the County Court of Stoddard County have given the green light to a Dexter engineering firm to draw plans and make specifications for the renovation of the county jail.

Since October 1971, the court has been studying conditions at the jail and considering methods, ways and means of providing Stoddard County with a modern facility.

At the request of the county court and John M. Capps, county clerk, Bill E. Duncan, assistant director of correction programs came to the county in October to inspect the jail with Walter Lumpkin and Wayne Potter, law enforcement assistance administrators, all representatives from U. S. Bureau of Prisons.

Duncan returned to Bloomfield in February to give technical assistance and make recommendations. He submitted recommendations to Robert Henzi, executive director of Region 6, of the Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

The county court directed a preliminary report on the Stoddard County Jail to be made by C. R. Trotter and Associates, an engineering firm of Dexter.

The facility will be enlarged, taking the living quarters now occupied by the sheriff and his family and incorporating them into the jail proper.

Book Review

On Poetry of Poe

POE POE POE POE POE POE POE. By Daniel Hoffman. Doubleday & Co. $7.95.

The state of American letters cannot be hopeless when, in a time of confusion and frequently tasteless writing, a poet and professor of literature writes a basically admiring book on Edgar Allan Poe. If ever an American writer set forth rigid standards of aesthetics and then strove through poverty and neglect to uphold them, it was Poe.

Daniel Hoffman is professor of English at the University of Pennsylvania and the author of five books of poetry. The prompting for his latest book with the irritatingly repetitious title obviously comes from his fascination with Poe's verse and prose since high school days.

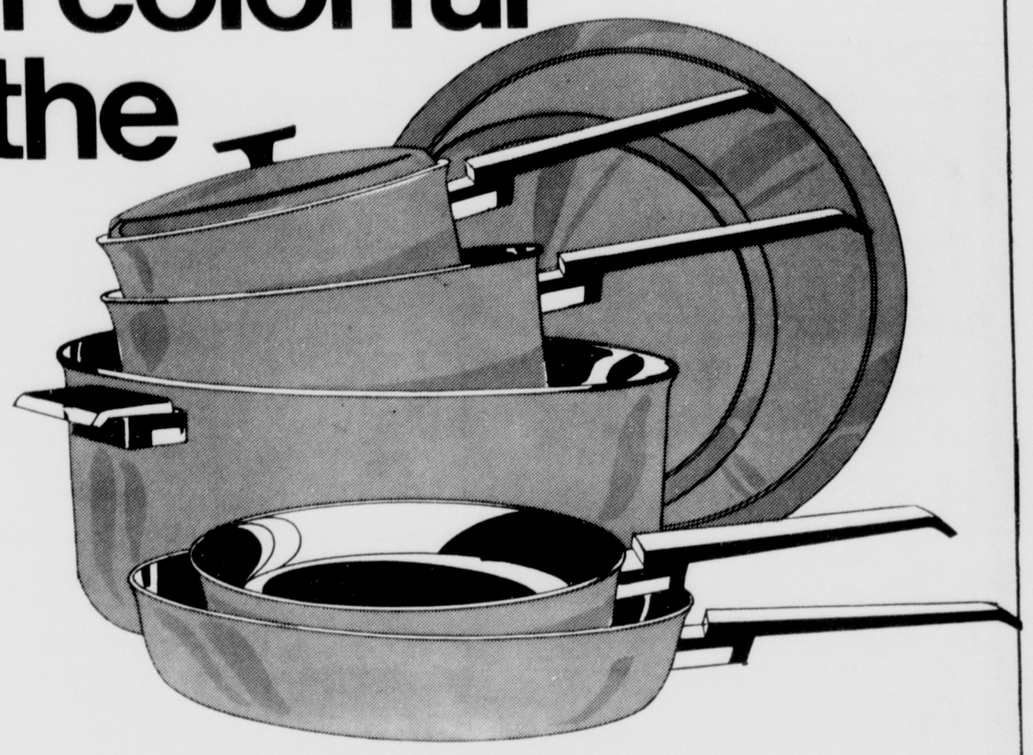

Of course, Hoffman feels he must identify with some of the more sophisticated moderns, T.S. Eliot, for instance, who emphasize what they consider Poe's faults as a poet and critic even as they acknowledge their debt of creative inspiration to him.

For years poor Poe's weird grotesqueries of subject and style have made him fair game to modern psychologists. He is a natural for psychoanalytic treatment, and in this Hoffman is no exception. However, in the age of astronauts, Hoffman's sense of humor redeems him when he cites one analyst who insists Poe's fanciful account of a voyage to the moon represents man's urge to return to the womb!

There are several condescending and irritating mannerisms which Hoffman employs — for example, his frequent attempts to put Poe down with such familiarities as "Eddie" and "Edgarpoe."

Nevertheless, as Hoffman describes and appraises the principal poems and stories, he does not or cannot conceal his very strong sympathy for probably the most unusual genius of our literature. Ronald C. Hood

Reagan Making Inroads With College Crowd

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -- Gov. Ronald Reagan says he's receiving more and more invitations to communicate with college students and "I'm grabbing as many as I can get."

He told a student interviewer Thursday that his new availability stems partly from the relative calm on campuses and the absence of many radical campus leaders.

But mostly, he said, "I'll be honest with you. I think a great many students are being told a great many things that aren't true. Sometimes they're being told that on campus."

"Our 1972 cars and trucks have been achieving outstanding market acceptance and consequently a greater share of the market," they said.

Ford did not anjounce any plans for rebates on vehicles already sold, but said the new prices will be applicable to all vehicles in dealers' inventories.

Mariner 9 is programmed for a 90-day orbit to provide man with his first continuous and close-up view of another planet.

For commercial use or for the home garden the new lettuce, Ithaca, is tops when planted in earliest spring.

This year, for the first time, there is plenty of seed available of a new lettuce, so new it was released for seed production just 2 years ago.

Named Ithaca, for the home of Cornell University, this lettuce was developed by Prof. Peter L. Minotti and Prof. Emeritus George J. Raleigh, both of the Department of Vegetable Crops, New York State College of Agriculture, a part of the university.

Ithaca is intended to be used for commercial lettuce production and it already has proven outstanding in field performance in New Jersey, so that demand for seed is particularly high from that state. But it also is excellent for the home gardener who wants early lettuce that will transplant perfectly in cold, less than perfect spring weather.

Ithaca was bred for spring planting on well-drained mineral soils. It matures early; has a firm, bright green, attractive head with shiny green leaves. Heads in a planting mature at the same time, a characteristic vital for harvesting for commercial use but neither necessary or particularly desirable in the home garden.

Thus it would seem sensible for the home gardener to make several small, successive sowings of Ithaca in a cold frame or seed bed, transplanting the seedlings to the garden as they become large enough.

This would insure a supply of high quality early lettuce and also the best performance from this variety, which needs to be transplanted to mature satisfactorily. But this is its only foible, one that is not too hard to cater to.

Ithaca has 2 characteristics that will particularly endear the variety to the home gardener: it resists tipburn — that browning and drying of the margins of the tender leaves — and it is slow to go to seed after heads have formed.

Reagan Making Inroads With College Crowd

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -- Gov. Ronald Reagan says he's receiving more and more invitations to communicate with college students and "I'm grabbing as many as I can get."

He told a student interviewer Thursday that his new availability stems partly from the relative calm on campuses and the absence of many radical campus leaders.

But mostly, he said, "I'll be honest with you. I think a great many students are being told a great many things that aren't true. Sometimes they're being told that on campus."

Ford Will Cut Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has announced that 1972- model car and truck prices will be trimmed an average of $13 a vehicle to assure that the company's 1972 profits will be within the Price Commission guidelines.

The announcement came Wednesday after Ford had disclosed that its first- quarteer profits of $252 million - $2.44 a share — were the highest for any quarter in its history.

Ford Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee A. Iacocca said the price reductions reflect sevearl major developments of the past six months.

"Our 1972 cars and trucks have been achieving outstanding market acceptance and consequently a greater share of the market," they said.

Ford did not anjounce any plans for rebates on vehicles already sold, but said the new prices will be applicable to all vehicles in dealers' inventories.

There were no immediate reactions from General Motors Corp. or Chrysler Corp.

MESSAGES FROM MARS

pour into the Deep Space Network control center, above, as a dream of generations of scientists comes true with Mariner 9's successful orbiting of the red planet. Continuously sweeping Mars with its two television cameras and specialized instruments to analyze temperature, atmosphere and surface characteristics, the satellite radios data across millions of miles of space to the Pasadena, Calif., center. Left, Dr. Arthur Lane examines the results of an ultraviolet spectrometer experiment. Mariner 9 is programmed for a 90-day orbit to provide man with his first continuous and close-up view of another planet.

AND AWAY THEY GO! A lively crew modeled on notable comic strip characters of the period takes off on a replica of a sightseeing bus circa 1911, one of the featured items in the 29th annual National Antiques Show at New York's Madison Square Garden. More of the same includes, below, a Germany tin taxi from 1910 and a French-produced painted tole tin depot wagon from 1899.

For commercial use or for the home garden the new lettuce, Ithaca, is tops when planted in earliest spring.

This year, for the first time, there is plenty of seed available of a new lettuce, so new it was released for seed production just 2 years ago.

Named Ithaca, for the home of Cornell University, this lettuce was developed by Prof. Peter L. Minotti and Prof. Emeritus George J. Raleigh, both of the Department of Vegetable Crops, New York State College of Agriculture, a part of the university.

Ithaca is intended to be used for commercial lettuce production and it already has proven outstanding in field performance in New Jersey, so that demand for seed is particularly high from that state. But it also is excellent for the home gardener who wants early lettuce that will transplant perfectly in cold, less than perfect spring weather.

Ithaca was bred for spring planting on well-drained mineral soils. It matures early; has a firm, bright green, attractive head with shiny green leaves. Heads in a planting mature at the same time, a characteristic vital for harvesting for commercial use but neither necessary or particularly desirable in the home garden.

Thus it would seem sensible for the home gardener to make several small, successive sowings of Ithaca in a cold frame or seed bed, transplanting the seedlings to the garden as they become large enough.

This would insure a supply of high quality early lettuce and also the best performance from this variety, which needs to be transplanted to mature satisfactorily. But this is its only foible, one that is not too hard to cater to.

Ithaca has 2 characteristics that will particularly endear the variety to the home gardener: it resists tipburn — that browning and drying of the margins of the tender leaves — and it is slow to go to seed after heads have formed.

County Offices To Be Merged

Three counties in Southeast Missouri will no longer have separate probate judge and magistrates if a bill passed by the Missouri legislature goes into effect. The bill has not been signed by the governor.

The bill combines the magistrate and probate judges into one ex-officio magistrate- probate judge in Scott, Dunklin and Butler counties. The two offices run concurrently and will go into effect at the end of the four-year terms in 1974.

John Sides is the probate judge in Scott county and Lloyd G. Briggs of Chaffee is the Scott county magistrate.

The two offices would be combined in 11 Missouri counties with a population from 30,000 to 48,000 except for Platte county.

According to State Sen. Albert M. Spradling of Cape Girardeau the two offices were combined because according to case loads the probate judge did not have enough to do.

In Cape Girardeau county probate was taken from the common pleas court and placed in the probate court. The probate judge was ordered to serve both Cape Girardeau and Jackson.

nominal boss, said "I am saddened to hear of his death. He has been a major figure on the American scene for a long time. He loved this country and we shall miss him."

Acting Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst issued a one-paragraph statement in which he said Hoover's body was found by his maid at approximately 8:30 a.m. today.

"It is with profound personal grief that I announce that J. Edgar Hoover passed away during the night at his residence," Kleindienst said. "His personal physician informed me that his death was due to natural causes."

Hoover, unmarried, dominated the bureau during his lifetime as no man in any other federal agency. Wielding vast power, he was said to lavish on the FBI the pride and possessiveness of a stern and watchful parent.

He joined the bureau as its acting director in 1921 after several years as a $990-a-year Justice Department law clerk, and became director three years later. Born in Washington, D.C., on Jan. 1, 1895, Hoover received his law degree from George Washington University and lived all his life in the District of Columbia.

Big Gun Helps

(Editors: Because of the light schedule, there will be only one baseball roundup this morning) Baseball Rdp

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Houston Astros traded for a big gun during the off-season after their Toy Cannon lost some firepower.

Getting Lee May has really helped. It's made a better hitter out of little Jimmy Wynn.

The 5-9, 170-pound outfielder is more than pulling his weight with five home runs this season, including a grand slam blast that helped the Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 Monday night.

"I'm smiling now," said Wynn after a big night that also included a double and single and two runs scored.

He should be happier than last season, when he hit only seven home runs all year and plunged to a career-low .205 batting average while sitting in Manager Harry Walker's dog house.

Now batting in front of the power-hitting May, who had 39 homers last season for Cincinnati, Wynn is hitting at a .379 clip with 16 RBI and 15 runs scored.

In the only other games Monday, the New York Mets turned back the San Francisco Giants 7-4 and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 in National League action.

The Astros' victory moved them into a tie with Los Angeles for first place in the National League's West race and shoved the defending World Champion Pirates 4 1/2 games off the pace in the East.

Right-hander Tom Seaver struck out 12 batters in 6 and 23 innings and got relief help from Tug McGraw to post his fourth victory without a loss this season.

Leading 4-3, the Mets broke open the game with three runs in the event' on singles by Bud Harrelson, Tommie Agee, Rusty Staub, Cleon Jones and Jim Fregosi.

Despite Seaver's high strikeout total, he was pulled after giving up home runs to Dave Rader, Chris Speier and Ken Henderson. Little Bud Harrelson, one of the most unlikely long ball hitters in the New York lineup, also drove one out.

Dick Selma, a former relief pitcher, spun a three-hitter and Willie Montanez hit a two-run homer for Philadelphia.

Selma and Claude Osteen of Los Angeles were locked in a scoreless pitching duel until the Dodger southpaw walked Terry Harmon with two out in the eighth and threw a gopher all to Montanez. Selma squeezed out of an eighth-inning jam after Willie Crawford knocked in Los Angeles' lone run with a sacrifice fly.

Blue Ready To Play

BOSTON (AP) — Vida Blue, the Oakland A's sensational young southpaw, was set to end his holdout and sign a 1972 contract today as probably the highest paid major league sophomore in history.

"I'm ready to play," the 22year-old pitcher said late Monday night after arriving in Boston on a non-stop flight from San Francisco and then going into seclusion.

Blue was met at Logan International Airport by Joe Reichler, assistant to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn. He was polite, but not very communicative with the lone sports writer to meet him.

He looked fit, but merely shrugged and occasionally smiled when asked questions, such as how long did he think it would take before he's ready to pitch.

"I've been working out on my own," the 1971 American League's most valuable player and Cy Young Award winner said. "I don't have any plans. I've been on a plane and haven't talked to anyone. All I want now is a good night's sleep."

Blue, who had been holding out for $92,000, agreed to accept a total package of $63,000 to sign with the Athletics. All that's needed now is his signature on a contract. That business had to come first today before he left a motel and moved in with his teammates at a Back Bay hotel, a short distance from Fenway Park where the A's meet the Boston Red Sox tonight.

Kuhn and A's owner Charlie Finley also were due in town for the official signing of one of baseball's top gate attractions.

"I wouldn't miss it," Finley said in Chicago, adding he was "extremely pleased" that wblue was ready to sign.

Finley said the contract terms will be the same worked out last week in a meeting with Blue. The club owner added, "The contract will read $50,000 and on the side will be $13,000 in cash."

In his first full season in the league in 1971, Blue earned $14,750 while compiling a 24-8 record and packing in fans wherever he pitched.

Blue and his attorney, Robert J. Gerst of Los Angeles, have conducted marathon negotiations with Finley. An apparent agreement fell through last Friday when Blue refused to sign a joint announcement of the contract's details.

Kuhn stepped in the next day. As commissioner, he used what he called his general powers to act "in the best interests of baseball" and ordered Finley to keep open his offer to Blue.

Confessions of a Worry Wart

Managing? Not for Pee Wee Reese

By ED HAYES

ORLANDO, Fla.—(NEA)—All these years Pee Wee Reese has been fooling the public.

The little guy was out there playing with the giants of baseball, playing it cool, putting in time as captain of the Dodgers, the Southern white boy who befriended Jackie Robinson. Reese was the guy who had it all under control.

What was there to stew about? They were the carefree, swashbuckling years in Brooklyn, the 1940s and '50s.

Today Pee Wee Reese is 53 and has ulcers.

"I guess I fooled a lot of people," he said.

By his own confession he was a worry wart. If things weren't going right he actually hated putting on his uniform. "There were times," he said, "when I dreaded going to bat . . ."

That's why he's not managing a big-league club today. "I've had several offers," he revealed, "but I have no desire to manage. Maybe it would have been different if I'd stayed in baseball as a coach. But I would've worried too much, and there are so many things to worry about off the field.

"A major league manager has to speak at a lot of banquets, and I never did like that, even after being in TV for two years. To this day if I have to give a speech it bothers me. It worries me until it's over.

"I worried if I went 0-for-5. I'm not about to start worrying over nine guys doing that.

"Mr. O'Malley (Walter F.) always used to say I'd be a manager some day but I said no way."

In 1959 the Dodgers had a date with Cincinnati for an exhibition in Cuba. Manager Walt Alston was unable to make the trip "for some reason and (Chuck) Dressen was at the track, so I had to manage the team. We won both games and on the flight back Mr. O'Malley said, 'See there, Pee Wee! That wasn't so bad, was it?' I said, 'No way, no way.'"

He had something else to worry about when he put his uniform away. Television.

"I didn't think I would last in television," he said. "I didn't want to get into it but they talked me into it."

When Buddy Blattner broke with Dizzy Dean in '59, Gene Kirby asked Pee Wee to hook up with Diz. His answer: "My Lord, no."

But after discussing it with his wife, and Dodger executive Buzzie Bavasi, he changed his mind and uniform. "When I told Buzz what kind of money they were offering me, and a two-year contract, he said that was more money than I'd be able to make coaching for the Dodgers, so I took the job. But talking before millions of people? I knew I just couldn't do it.

"Bavasi said I couldn't turn it down, and that I'd probably foul it up anyway and could always go back to the Dodgers."

Stock Car Racing Friday

MALDEN — The 26th consecutive year of stock car racing sponsored by the Jaycees at the Jaycee speedway on highway 25 north will begin Friday night.

Time trials will be at 7:30 p.m. and racing at 8 p.m. There will be a $500 guaranteed purse. Two classes will run -- c and hobby.

Riva Ridge Derby Favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — No Le Hace is ready for Saturday's 98th running of the Kentucky Derby and the size of the field or the condition of the track makes no difference, says trainer Homer Pardue.

Told there could be 20 or more 3-year-olds in the Derby, the veteran horseman pointed out Monday that No Le Hace beat 16 rivals in the Arkansas Derby.

Asked if he worried about an off-track, he noted that his charge won the Lousiaian Derby in the slop and added:

"We can race uphill if they want us to—or they can cover the track with asphalt."

Perhaps influenced by the Spanish meaning of the name No le Hace—it doesn't matter— Pardue also said the son of Candy Spots' placing in today's one-mile Derby Trial doesn't matter.

"He doesn't have to prove anything," said Parude, I just want him to get a little tired and not get hurt."

Also among the 14 Derby hopefuls entered for the Derby Trial, set for 5:30 p.m., EDT, were Paul Mellons' Key to the Mint and Head of the River.

While the early favoritism for the 1 1/4-mile, $125,000-added Derby rested with Mrs. John Tweedy's Riva Ridge and Mrs. Maribel Blum's Hold your Peace, No Le Hace has the credentials to be considered a top contender.

No Le-Hace has won seven of his last nine starts, five in a row and all four races as 3year-old.

TRCC Takes Series, 2-1

POPLAR BLUFF — Three Rivers community college took two of three baseball games fromMineral Area junior college of Flat River Saturday and Sunday.

The Raiders of Coach Joe Blemker split a double header Saturday losing, 8-6, and winning, 6-5 in eight innings. The Raiders won a makeup game Sunday 4-2.

Mark Swagman took the 8-6 loss and Mark Hildbrand won the extra inning affair. Mike Weber picked up the 4-2 win with relief help from John McCulloch in the seventh inning. Mark Hildebrand slammed a home run in the Sunday game.

Three Rivers plays at St. Louis Tuesday against Forest Park Junior College. Thursday the Raiders play Floressant Valley at St. Louis and come back home to take on Floressant Valley in a doubleheader Saturday for the final home games of the season.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, May 2, the 123rd day of 1972. There are 243 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the Soviets announced the fall of Berlin in World War II. The Western Allies announced that Nazi troops had surrendered in Italy and parts of Austria.

On this date:

In 1670, the Hudson's Bay Company was chartered by England.

In 1863, Confederate Gen. Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson was mistaken for a Union scout and shot and fatally wounded by his own soldiers during the Civil War battle of Chancellorsville, Va.

In 1890, the Oklahoma Territory was organized.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler abolished labor unions in Germany.

In 1960, Caryl Chessman was executed in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber in California after eight stays of execution.

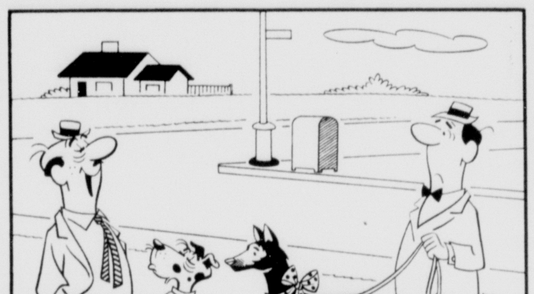

In 1966, there was rioting in Israel during a visit by former West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Ten years ago: India made public a note to Communist China accusing that country of creating conflict and tension among Asian nations.

Five years ago: British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government decided to seek membership in the European Common Market.

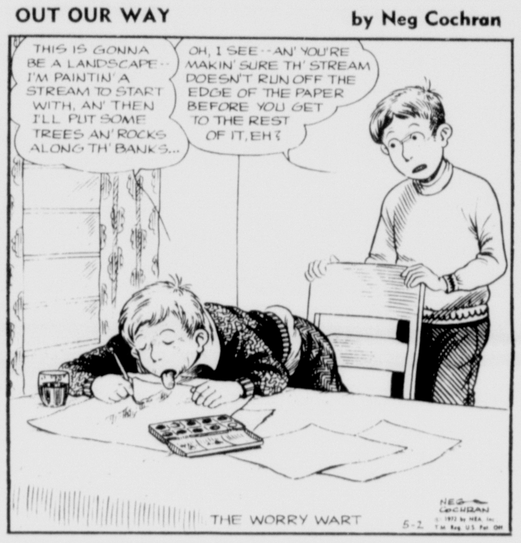

One year ago: In a sudden predawn raid in Washington, D.C., police scattered 30,000 antiwar demonstrators camped along the Potomac River.

Today's birthdays: King Hussein of Jordan is 37. Bing Crosby is 68.

Stanley Goodman, board chairman, said the programs calls for 20 to 25 new department stores in the next five years.

He said there will also be a major expansion of the Venture chain into other cities. Presently there are Venture Stores in St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield, Mo. and Peoria, Ill.

Amendments On Ballot Contradict

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The executive director of the Missouri Oil Jobbers Association, John Hahn, said today state voters will face contradictory issues in the November general election in the wake of the legislature's action Sunday night.

The lawmakers decided to send to the voters a governmental reorganization plan that would, among other things, leave the state highway department intact.

Already on the November ballot is a $730 million highway bond issue that would see the highway department incorporated under the authority of the state Transportation Department.

Hahn said there is a 1967 section of the Missouri statutes that says if two contradictory laws or amendments are approved by voters in the same election, the one with the highest number of votes carries.

Hahn said the oil jobbers favor the legislature's streamlining plan because it leaves the highway department and its funds intact.

Puxico Farmer Area's Best

DEXTER — Ronald Tweedy of Puxico was selected outstanding young farmer of the area at the annual Jaycee banquet at the Hickory Log restaurant Monday at 7 p.m.

He won the citation on the basis of financial progress since beginning farming and the use of modern farming methods.

Entries were between 21 and 35.

Chosen second was Dennis Cox of Bernie and third was Larry Riley, also of Bernie.

Winners will be entered in the state competition for Outstanding Young Farmer of Missouri.

Speaker was Randall Ramsey, candidate for Missouri senate from the 25th district. Jaycee chairman was Tom Love.

Told the boss we wouldn't stand for any more work, and he agreed. Said we'd better spend more time at our desk.

Landfill Plan Given To Council

DEXTER -- Terry Howes of the C. R. Trotter Engineering firm, representing Hester "Heck" Campbell, met with the city council Monday night to discuss the sanitary landfill which Campbell is trying to set up on his land one mile north of Dexter Memorial hospital.

Howes said the land has been inspected and approved by both the division of health and the Missouri Geological Survey for landfill operations.

He pointed out the city dump is unsatisfactory, and the city will be forced to do something about the problem.

If the proposal is approved, it would involve Dexter, Essex, Bernie and Bloomfield, at an annual charge to Dexter alone of $16,700. This would result in an approximate charge of $2.77 per resident per year for a site to dispose of solid wastes.

Mayor Willis Conner appointed a committee of aldermen Lehman Godwin, Richard Miller, and James Carney to check it.

During the meeting new city officers were sworn in and retiring Alderman L. B. Reeves gave up his post to the new alderman of ward three, Robert Curtis.

Mayor Conner appointed committees for the coming term — committee on alleys, streets and police, chairman, James Williams; committee for water, sewers and streets, chairman, Lehman Godwin; city attorney, Paul McGhee; city treasurer, Ernest Kirby; city custodian, George Hopkins;

The council confirmed the list of city offices.

Mayor Conner informed the board of the need of the police department concerning a new base and communications station. He stated that the present system is approximately 14 years old. Conner has been in contact with the Bootheel Law Enforcement Council and was notified that the city could receive a grant on a 75-25 matching basis.

Conner has received two bids on the project with the low bid at $7,593. The council agreed to the need of the station.

An advisory committee of seven Dexter businessmen was appointed by Mayor Conner to make recommendations to the council members on ways to gain additional revenue for the city's general fund. From this the city subsidizes both parks and fire departments.

Those appointed to the committee were Darrell Webb, Joe Weber, Barney Miller, John F. Ullen, Jack Miller, Berry Holder, and attorney, Steven Mitchell.

Conner stated the city cannot continue to subsidize these departments entirely from the money now coming in.

Council Agrees To Buy Park Site

BERNIE -- Chairmen of the Park Board Leon Renfro and Tom Burris, discussed with the city council Monday night purchase of an additional eight-acre tract of land for a proposed city park with matching federal funds. The board decided to buy the ground.

Council members passed an ordinance to organize a civil defense unit in the city with Ray Coats as chairman.

Bids for the new fire truck, which included the body, chassis and equipment, totaled approximately $2,000 more than was expected. Board members will negotiate with the two low bidders in trying to reduce the cost.

The city agreed to work with the Chamber of Commerce on employment of a medical student in the community health program for the summer.

A deadline of June 1 was set by the city for contractors and subdivision developers when they will begin paying the cost of utility line extensions.

The board hired Dave Moore as police officer after he served a 30- day probationary period.
